Four Good Names
The Airfleet Controls
24 Billions a Year

San Simeon, Calif., March 12—It is pleasant to read here, at the edge of the Pacific, a Washington dispatch saying that the government will establish a great airport in Hawaii near Fort Kamehameha, named for the last king of Hawaii. The idea is to keep enough bombing planes there to take care of unwelcome fliers or surface ships arriving from Asia.

It will be more pleasant to read, as you may do later, that the government plans to establish a powerful air base on the island of Guam, which we are free to fortify, now that the Washington conference agreements have been repudiated and our silly pledge not to fortify Guam is wiped out.

That Guam air base, which should be as powerful as any in the world, and another one located on the land that we shall retain from the foolishly soon to be abandoned Philippines, should provide for any Asiatic danger.

Any Asiatic shipping that might interest us would pass within convenient striking distance of one or the other of those air bases.

In reply to the question "whom will you support in the coming Presidential campaign," W. R. Hearst tells the United Press he expects to support President Roosevelt, who will doubtless get the Democratic nomination.

As possible and desirable nominations by the Republicans, Mr. Hearst suggests "Chief Justice Hughes, if he could be induced to run. He adds:

"Senator Hiram Johnson of California would make a good candidate for the Republican party, as would Senator Borah of Idaho, or Senator Norris of Nebraska."

It is pleasant in these "steal-the-wealth" days to be reminded that there still exist in the United States men of the type of Chief Justice Hughes, Hiram Johnson, Senator Borah and Senator Norris. It is easy to overlook them, with so many mountebanks gyrating.

Thanks to airplanes, the Greek rebellion is crushed. The old Greek patriot, Venizelos, leading the revolt at the age of 72, fled yesterday from his home on the island of Crete across the Aegean Sea to an Italian island for refuge.

Weeping, the old man vowed that he would never again set foot on Greek soil. A rebel cruiser took Venizelos to the protection of the Italian flag. Then, last of the fleet that had rebelled, the cruiser Averoff, surrendered to the government.

Interesting old names come in reports of events in Greece —Chios and Samos, where the "tyrant's" cook found inside of a fish the valuable ring the king had dropped in the sea, and Mytilene, all three islands that the rebel fleet captured, at the beginning of the Civil War.

The collapse of this rebellion by some of the most powerful men in Greece, accompanied by the seizure of the Greek fleet shows that whoever controls air fleet can control the country.

Somebody might tell that to Washington. A little flare-up here is not impossible.

The California assembly votes 58 to 17 in favor of the Townsend plan. The State Senate, however, revolted, and defeated the resolution calling on Congress to enact the old age pension bill.

It is not possible for the United States to pay TWENTY-FOUR THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS every year, the total cost of giving $200 per month to every man past sixty.

It does not cost the assemblymen anything to vote for the impossible and it makes them feel politically safe.

Mr. Weber said to Mr. Fields, "Why did you offer that man the $5000 for his dog? You ain't got $5000."

Mr. Weber replied, "I know it, but ain't it a good offer?"

The United States should establish old age pensions sufficient to insure freedom from anxiety in old age. It is a pity to delude the aged, with promises that cannot be kept, and may prevent any old age pension.

Germany's body of highly trained air pilots, members of the Civilian "Air Sport" Association have all been placed under the orders of the regular army and will become a valuable part of Germany's defensive force.

Germany is told by indignant French newspapers, "that is a violation of the Versaille treaty," but without agitating Mr. Hitler.

The Versaille treaty is disintegrating like our own NRA, a venerable bird that is moulting, losing its beautiful feathers prematurely.

178 Win Stays in Everett 'Show' Raid

POLICE KILLER SENTENCE DELAYED: WIFE PLEADS

EVERETT GIRL DANCERS HELD

Due to a technicality raised by the defendants, the six girls and 172 men, arraigned in Malden court today as a result of last night's show raid in Everett, were continued until March 25 by Judge Maurice Flynn.

State and Everett police swooped down on the "stag" party in a surprise round-up and filled the police station to overflowing with defendants.

The six girls and four of the men were charged with taking part in an improper performance, and the remaining men, most of them from Everett, with being present at the show.

This afternoon, 70 of the 178 arraigned were still awaiting bail of $25. Many had given assumed names, it was declared.

Crowded by Kin

Unless bail is provided, the 25, including the young women who danced, will be taken to East Cambridge jail.

Originally, 317 were arrested in the raid. All but the 178 were released. The arraignment caused more confusion than any in the history of the Malden court.

Mothers and sisters, sweethearts and brothers were there waving money to bring about the release of relatives.

The technicality which provided the defendants with a continuance was the meaning of the word, "participating," raised after testimony of police officers had been heard.

As a test case, two of the defendants were chosen to represent the crowd and their attorney was given leave to file a brief on that point.

SECOND QUIN Now Boasts Tooth

Callander, Ont., March 13 (INS) —The Dionne quintuplets collectively boasted two teeth today.

Following the example of her sister, Annette, who exhibited the first incisor yesterday, little Yvonne today produced her first—a lower incisor.

$5,000,000 Daily Relief Cost

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, today requested an additional $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 to supply relief needs for the remainder of March.

TORCH Boy Laid AT REST

SIX PLAYMATES ARE BEARERS

Brockton, March 13—Eddie Smith was buried today in Calvary cemetery, as six youthful pall-bearers sobbed their grief.

The nine-year-old boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smith of 769 North Montello street, played "cannibal" last week, and was burned to death at the stake.

St. Mary's church, where final rites took place, was crowded. Through the mysterious gloom of the church, the six white-faced, trembling little fellows escorted his body to the altar, where the Reverend Father William F. Maciaszek sung the funeral mass.

Mrs. Smith and her husband sat in the first pew, bravely stemming the tide of emotions as Eddie, one of their brood of eight, went to his last resting place.

It is unusual to deliver an eulogy at a Catholic funeral. That is usually reserved for dignitaries of the state or nation. But blond, young Father Maciaszek delivered one today.

The father and mother of the little boy had forgiven his playmates. This, said the priest, was an act of Christian forgiveness and charity, and he seemed to be speaking directly to the grieving parents through the solemn hush of the crowded church.

"This little boy who has gone on," said the priest, "in his last moments had no complaints, again exemplifying the spirit of Christian charity and forgiveness. In his last whispered prayers he asked that nothing be done to his playmates."

Snow swirling down in Calvary cemetery as the white casket was lowered into the grave. The sobbing youngsters, the oldest of whom was 11, dropped small clods of earth on the lowering box. The priest intoned the last blessings of the church.

And then the sun came out, miraculously, with a benediction. Eddie Smith was only a memory.

It was said today, on excellent authority, that there will be no prosecution against the last playmates of Eddie. The mother and father of the boy have forgiven them. The police will do the same.

Schoolmates Pallbearers at Boy Stake Victim's Funeral

Final chapter of the tragedy which resulted from a boyish prank! Boy friends assist in carrying from St. Mary's church, Brockton, the casket of nine-year-old Eddie Smith, burned to death, bound to a tree, as playmates staged a make-believe "cannibal" stunt. ROBOT Flies Plane OVER PACIFIC

Oakland Airport, Cal, March 13—The army's newest "robot" plane landed here shortly before 9 a. m. (P. S. T.) today, after a four-hour "blind flying" test flight over the Pacific.

Observers were not permitted to get near the low-winged, twin-motored Douglas plane when it landed, but several army and department of aeronautics experts immediately began to check the plane.

After today's short test flight, Director Eugene Vidal of the Department of Commerce bureau of air commerce said the "ultimate" test probably would be a flight to Honolulu.

The plane arrived here from San Diego Monday night, with two army pilots, Captain Albert Hegenberger, formerly of South Boston, Mass., co-pilot of the first plane to fly to Hawaii, and Captain Clayton Bissell, veteran flier, aboard with Vidal and others.

ROOSEVELT Awaits Gold Study

Washington, March 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today government studies so far had revealed no necessity for new legislation as a result of the Supreme Court gold decisions.

However, in response to questions at the regular press conference, the President explained administration legal experts were exploring fully the ramifications of the court ruling and a final decision on legislation would await further study.

PROPAGANDA Probe Ordered

Washington, March 13 (INS)—The Senate today adopted unanimously a resolution by Senator Norris (R.) of Nebraska, directing the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the flood of propaganda against proposed holding company legislation in Congress.

Norris sponsored the resolution because Congress has been inundated with protests, obviously inspired by holding companies.

MOTHER Fears Girl KIDNAPED

Fear that her 16-year-old daughter, missing since February 2, is being held by kidnapers was expressed to Lynn police today by her mother.

The mother, Mrs. Eva Sorrentino, told police she received a letter from her daughter, Helen Murphy, postmarked Wells River, Vt.

She said the address on the envelope was not written in her daughter's hand and that the letter "sounded as though she had been forced to write it."

FIRST LADY Plans Ice Box Raid

Washington, March 13 (INS)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was "not at all displeased" at Amelia Earhart's remark at Boston two days ago that she "was hungry all the time" during her recent visit at the White House.

"As a matter of fact," said the First Lady at a press conference today, "she only had one breakfast and one dinner here.

"The next time she comes—and I hope it will be soon—I'll show her how to raid the icebox."

AMELIA TESTS Radios for $1 a Year

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Amelia Earhart, noted woman flyer, has been engaged at $1 a year by the Commerce Department to test a new radio direction finder for airplanes.

The finder was described as a new form of radio compass which would greatly facilitate directional flying.

MUST Be Tried in ROBBERY

WALSH CASE MAKES HISTORY

The case of a police killer who escaped a murder charge by a legal loophole made new court history today.

Edmund J. Walsh, 29, of Stoneham—guilty of manslaughter by directed verdict—cried that he hadn't meant to kill Patrolman Isaiah McLain, 63, of Malden.

His attractive young wife told of his admissions to her before his arrest, of her decision to remain loyal to him, of his request that she pray for McLain.

Then she collapsed.

Judge Nelson P. Brown ruled that Walsh should not be sentenced for manslaughter until after his trial, next month, charged with armed robbery, for which he was being arrested when he shot McLain.

District Attorney Warren L. Bishop announced he would move for a life sentence for Walsh if he was found guilty of the robbery.

Walsh was urged to retract his plea of not guilty to the robbery of Guy Antico, an insurance man. He refused.

Under a severe cross-examination by Bishop—his first court questioning made possible because he chose to take the stand and plead for himself—he testified that he had a gun on the night of November 5 and that he saw Antico that night.

Trial in April

His trial on the robbery charge was ordered for the April term of Middlesex Superior court.

Several character witnesses of prominence testified on summons for Walsh. One told of a larceny by Walsh and a threat by him to kill himself, and expressed the belief he was crazy.

While the court session was going on, moves were being made by the Massachusetts Police Association and various legislators to change the law which allowed

WIFE PLEADS FOR POLICE KILLER

Sentence Put Off

The dramatic highlight of the court hearing was Walsh's cry, with upraised hand:

"I am telling you the truth when I say that I didn't mean to kill that gentleman."

He said he was carrying a gun November 12, the day of the killing, because he was going to a fish and game club to shoot and that it was discharged when he tried to hide it.

The emotional peak was reached when the former Alice Crosby, mother of his two young children and Stoneham high school girl of a few years ago, told in a voice hardly above a whisper of a talk with her husband when he arrived home after fleeing the scene of the shooting:

"He told me what had happened and that it was up to me—if I wanted to walk out on him that was for me to decide, I said, 'Absolutely not.' He was my husband and the father of my two children . . ."

She maintained her composure through the long court hearing but collapsed in tears when court adjourned with Walsh's fate still undecided.

Mrs. Walsh was questioned about the day of the killing, and said:

"He came home about 4:30 and told me I could make up my mind exactly what I wanted to do.

"He told me what had happened and that it was up to me—if I wanted to walk out on him, why that was for me to decide, I said, 'Absolutely not.'

"Ready to Help"

"He was my husband and the father of my two children and I would do everything in my power to help him."

She was asked if he had told her of the circumstances of the shooting. She said:

"He said that he was on his way home and he met the officer. He knew he had the gun on him and wanted to get rid of it.

"He tried to throw the gun out of his pocket and said then the accident had occurred."

"He said he had no intention of killing any one and that he was more than sorry for the officer. He said that at that time he did not know how serious it was—whether he was dead or not.

"After that conversation he asked me to pray for him (McLain) and he hoped he was not dead."

She then told of officers arriving at the house that night and arresting her husband.

Breaks Down

She was accompanied in court by Walsh's father and her brother, William Crosby.

She collapsed in tears outside the courtroom and was taken to an anteroom, where she wept bitterly.

Walsh was placed on the stand and sworn. Under questioning of Scharton, he traced his early life, his education in Cambridge grammar schools and three years' attendance at Cambridge Latin.

He left school because of family circumstances and worked in various grocery stores up until a few months before the shooting.

A few months previous to the killing, he lost his job, he said. He had a temporary job as a magazine salesman which paid him $10 a week.

He said he was a member of the M. C. O. F. and was financial secretary of the Cambridge order for five years.

Q—Coming down to November 12, you left home at what time? A—7:30 in the morning.

Q—Where were you going? A.—I was going to Boston

Q—You had a gun with you? A—Yes.

Q—Why did you have that gun? A—Well, I belonged to a fish and game club and I planned to go over and do some shooting.

Q—Some time in the afternoon you reached the corner of Sidney street and the Fellsway in Medford? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What were you doing there? A—I was standing there hoping that somebody would come along and give me a ride to Stoneham. I guess I was there about 15 minutes.

Q—Why did you go along Fellsway east? A—I believed it was the shortest road to Stoneham.

Q—Now will you tell, slowly and calmly, just what transpired between you and Officer McLain on Fellsway east in Malden that afternoon. A—I remember coming to the end of the pond. I saw the officer get out of the car and come over in my direction. He came up to me and asked me my name. I said: 'My name is Walsh, why?' He told me to walk across the street to the car and I did. When we got to the car I heard Antico say to Officer McLain, 'That's the man.' I said to Officer McLain, 'Let's get this straight. What is it all about?' Then the officer grabbed me and started pushing me towards the back of the car. I heard Antico say to the officer, 'Frisk him; he's heeled.' My one thought was to dispose of the gun. I remember that. Then the officer grabbed me again. Then I don't remember what happened after that. (Raising his right hand, with tears in his eyes) Mr. Scharton, I'm a Roman Catholic, that is my faith I believe in it. I am telling you the truth, when I say that I didn't mean to kill that gentleman.

Q—Did you step back and aim the gun at the officer and fire? A—I don't remember that I did anything like that.

Q—What was the next thing you remember? A—I remember being up in the Fellsway and I saw a man and a woman walking and I asked them the road to Stoneham. They said, 'There's a police officer there. Maybe he could direct you.'

Q—Now outside of Antico's car, did you see any other car? A—I don't remember any other car.

Shows Wound

Q—Will you show the court where the bullet went through your hand? A—I will (displayed left hand to Judge Brown).

Q—Did you deliberately take aim and fire a bullet at this police officer's forehead? A—Mr. Scharton, to the best of my knowledge I did not do that.

Q—When you were arrested you told this story just as you're telling it now? A—Yes, sir, I did.

Q—You sent the widow of the officer a letter didn't you? A—I gave you a letter to mail to Mrs. McLain.

Q—Did you write that letter on your own volition or at my suggestion? A—That was on my own volition.

"Sorry for Him"

Q—Why did you do that? A—Because of the way I felt. Felt sorry for the officer and for his family.

Q—You didn't mean to shoot the officer? A—I never harmed anybody. I certainly wouldn't have done it deliberately.

District Attorney Bishop cross-examined. Walsh denied he had stolen money from a chain store where he worked, from an insurance company and from the Forresters.

Q—You don't remember stepping back, shooting that poor old policeman? A—No, sir.

Q—You didn't miss him, did you? A—No, sir.

Q—You don't remember leaving the scene? A—No, sir.

Q—Your mind is a blank as far as that actual shooting? A—Partially.

Q—You remember going home and telling your wife to pray for you? A—Yes.

Scharton: You mean pray for the policeman.

Q—Well, pray, anyway? A—Yes.

Q—Did you have a gun the night you met Antico? A—Yes.

Q—What was the night of November 5, wasn't it? A—Yes.

Q—Did you see Antico on the night of November 5? A—Yes.

Scharton objected to Bishop shouting "kill," adding, "There's no jury hearing you know."

Bishop: "The people of Massachusetts are going to hear about it."

Scharton: "The people of Massachusetts will take care of themselves."

Q—You mean to tell this court you didn't mean to kill that police officer? A—I did not.

Q—You remember the words by Antico: "Frisk him, he's heeled"? A—Yes.

Q—You only tried to hide the gun? A—Yes.

Q—Do you think you had a chance to hide that gun with all the people around there? A.—I thought I could.

Q—Did you think the officer was blind? A—No.

Bishop then moved for sentence. Judge Brown said:

"The court is aware of the fact that this defendant is under indictment charged with the armed robbery of Antico.

"These two cases are so closely bound and connected together that I shall decline to impose sentence in this case at this time. I shall impose sentence in this case after the disposition of the armed robbery case."

Asks Trial Now

Bishop said the cases dovetailed—that with this "which through a twist in the law an indictment charging first degree murder was voided and a manslaughter charge put in its place.

"The witnesses on that armed robbery charge are here in this courtroom and I request you in the interest of public justice that this defendant be sent to trial at this time, and as district attorney if a jury should return from their lips a verdict of 'Guilty' I shall move that this man be sentenced to pris a for life."

Judge Brown said:

"You realize, of course, you are talking in the presence of jurors who might be called upon to hear the facts in that case. I shall not put that case to trial until the next term of court. This man is not represented as far as I know by counsell n the armed robbery dase. Mr. Scharton was his counsel in this present case."

Kirk Called

Colonel Paul G. Kirk, public safety commissioner, was the first witness called for Walsh.

"I had the impression he was a quiet fellow, a rather efficient soldier," he said. "I never had an opportunity to know of him committing any breach of duty."

Richard D. Roquesnore, major in the 103d Field Artillery said he knew Walsh about three years through his military connections. He said:

"Average Type"

"Walsh was the average type of boy I had in my battery, quiet and of good behavior. He was in no trouble that I know of. He impressed me as being a good straightforward kid."

Joseph A. Cahalan, secretary of the Boston public health department, said he knew Walsh for 10 years when Walsh was a member of the M. C. O. F., of which Cahalan was a high official.

He said in October, 1933, he had occasion to question Walsh regarding a shortage of funds of the order which were in Walsh's control.

He said he called Walsh to his office, where he admitted he took the money, then saying he borrowed it.

Cahalan said he urged him to make a clean breast of the affair to Judge Sheehan and quoted Walsh as replying:

"I'll be dead before you go that far."

Later he said he got a call on the phone asking him if he would be responsible for Walsh's funeral expenses.

The person telephoning said Walsh had been inquiring about the cost of a funeral.

Cahalan said:

"I made the statement then and I make it now, that I think Walsh is crazy."

Bill Filed to Repeal Law Which Saved Walsh

A bill to repeal the law which allowed Edmund J. Walsh to escape conviction on a murder charge and another to amend the 1850 act were filed in the State House today.

Representative Samuel H. Cohen of Roxbury filed the bill calling for the repeal of the old "arrest law" which requires a police officer to notify a suspect why he is being arrested.

Representative Tony A. Contracchio of East Boston, a member of the legal affairs committee, filed the amendment.

Contracchio's amendment provides that the reason for arrest shall not necessarily be given until after the arrest is made and the suspect is in the police station.

PLEADS IN COURT FOR SLAYER HUSBAND

MRS. ALICE CROSBY WALSH

ALYCE Joyful, Eats STEAK

DOCTORS HALT GIFT 'PARTIES'

By PEGGY DOYLE

Fall River, March 13—When the beefsteak appears on the stage of convalescence, all the world seems brighter.

So, Alyce Jane McHenry's bright world actually sparkled today. Not only did she demolish a steak—the first in many long months—but she called for mayonnaise for two slices of tomato that accompanied it.

Masticating a generous mouthful, she chortled to her mother, Mrs. Luella McHenry of Omaha:

"Just think of what happened a week ago, mummy, and now look at what I'm eating."

Race With "Edie"

In her contest for speedy recovery with "Edie," another little patient in Truesdale Hospital, operated on the same day as the upside-down girl, Alyce Jane is about two days ahead—just about the margin of the steak.

"Alyce spent a comfortable night. Her condition is satisfactory," read the official bulletin.

Mail and presents continued to pour in.

A new doll received was an Indian squaw with papoose. Viewing it, Alyce Jane opined:

"The Indians here are much better looking than back home, where they are all short and squatty."

After looking at the papoose, however, Alyce's series of "Christmases" were ordered stopped by the doctors at the hospital.

The doctors pointed out the action was not taken because of any setback in her condition. They simply said they were guarding against too much excitement and they believed that "Christmas" every day might be too much of a strain on Alyce.

In the same orders, Alyce was forbidden to read any of the hundreds of fan letters that arrived today. It was believed that a day of complete rest will be greatly beneficial to her.

Invitations Galore

If Alyce Jane, upon full recovery, accepts all the invitations she has received in the mail, she will be kept busy for years touring the country.

An example of the type of these invitations is a letter from George T. Parker, secretary of selectmen at Kelford, N. C., and father of a Columbia University professor. He wrote:

"I'll take you down to the Atlantic ocean to Roanoke island and to the little town of Manteo, cradle of the American nation, where Virginia Dare, the first white child in America was born. "We will also visit the Wright monument, where the first airplane was flown by the Wright brothers."

Many of the invitations are for long visits.

SKULL STOLEN 2 Youths Fined

Whittinsville, March 13 (AP)—The theft of a human skull from the Indian burial cemetery in Uxbridge today cost two Mendon youths $30 apiece.

Joseph Taylor, 18, and Charles Goodnow, 20, said to be members of prominent Mendon families, were given seven days to pay their fines after they pleaded guilty to charges of disturbing the contents of a tomb. Police said the youths took the skull for use in an amateur entertainment sponsored by a Mendon church.

USE OF JUNKED AUTO

Blue Mountain, Miss., March 13—Hicks Foster contends there's no need to discard that worn-out automobile.

Here's what he did with his old car:

He used the running gear in building a farm wagon; the fenders for a watering trough; the hinges on his barn door; the axles for pillars under his house; the engine block for a doorstep; the radiator for a fireplace screen; the radius rods for a wire stretcher.

Big Mail for Alyce From Her Revere Fans

GEORGE SIEGEL JOHN DIPESA

"We'll see about that 'mail-order' boy friend who, according to the Boston Evening American, thinks he's getting the inside track with Alyce Jane McHenry," say George Siegel and John DiPesa, two of the 49 McKinley school, Revere, pupils who are all writing letters to the "upside-down" stomach girl, assuring her of their friendliness.

(Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)

GERTRUDE DRESSER

Smiles call for smiles—and this one's wearer, little Gertrude Dresser of the McKinley school, Revere, is happy because she has just completed her letter of good wishes and sympathy to Alyce Jane McHenry, "upside-down stomach" girl, now convalescing at Truesdale Hospital, Fall River.

VETERAN CHIEFS Plan Visit Here

Commander-in-Chief James E. Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States will visit the department of Massachusetts May 1. The national president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Mrs. Winifred Toussaint also will be on hand.

The visits of the two will officially open at the May Day patriotic rally that is conducted yearly by the state department of the Ladies' Auxiliary on the Boston Common.

6 Girls, 173 Men in Court After Everett Raid

promoting the show, were among those given continuances until March 28.

Their bail, like that of the others, was reduced to $25. Earlier this morning, it had been set at $500.

The courthouse was a replica of the wild scenes at Everett police station last night immediately following the raid. Defendants on bail milled around among spectators, and court clerk attaches were buried under the "paper detail" that preceded arraignment.

Immediately after the three continuances, the six girls and four men on the more serious charges were called.

The men gave their names as Guiseppe Toto of Gray street, South End; Abe Finkelstein of Sawin street, Roxbury; Herbert B. Kimball of Trident street, Winthrop, and Leonardo Cortez of Temple street, West End.

The girls were recorded as Miss Mary E. Allen, Helen E. Ellis and Marie E. Smith, all of a Boston hotel; Catherine Kelley of Westland davenue, Back Bay; Helen K. Dell of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and Mrs. Lolita Cortez, wife of Leonardo Cortez. All pleaded not guilty.

Sergeant John W. Collins of the Reading police barracks, testified that he attended the show after he had obtained a $1.50 ticket. He said he was met by two men at an outer door and two more at an inner door.

He was questioned closely on where he bought the ticket before he was admitted, he testified.

He described the performers and told the court that a girl introduced as "Rita" danced fully clothed at first but gradually removed her clothing "until she finally left the stage with just shoes on."

He described Mr. and Mrs. Cortez as participants in "a hot dance that was terrible."

Judge Flynn interrupted to ask if all the numbers in the show were against the moral laws. Sergeant Collins replied:

"No, not all of them. Some were pretty good, but most of them were disgusting."

Hopes of trapping some of the police critics as part of the audience was partly behind the raid and arrest of the audience, Police Chief George O. Kenney revealed today.

The chief said:

"First of all, of course, I wanted to stop these shows.

"But I thought, too that some of the chronic kickers against police; some of the critical politicians or some of the street-corner 'master minds' might have been in the audience.

The raid was instigated, he revealed, by a member of the very organization under whose auspices it was run. The chief said:

"This honest business man went to Sergeant Felix Dumas of the vice squad and asked him what he was going to do about the show. Sergeant Dumas reported to me and we arranged the raid."

In spite of reports that he ordered the raid, Mayor James A. Reche said today that he knew nothing of the raid plans.

In addition to the report of the business man, about 25 letters of complaint about the show were received by him, Chief Kenney said.

RED Lecturer TO FIGHT

STRACHEY MAY BE DEPORTED

Chicago, March 13—Apparently undisturbed by his arrest, Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, English author and lecturer, was taken before immigration officials today and a $500 bond was posted for a hearing.

The English "intellectual Communist" is charged with making false statements to obtain his entry into the United States in a warrant which may result in his deportation.

A date for the hearing will be set next week.

After posting bond Strachey boarded a train for Cleveland.

Strachey's freedom was obtained by a Liberty bond furnished by Professor Robert Morss Lovett, 65-year-old liberal editor and teacher.

"The charges against me are absolutely false," Strachey said as he boarded the train after posting bond at immigration headquarters. "I will fight them to the last ditch."

Strachey was arrested in suburban Glencoe last night after he had completed a lecture tour.

Pending hearing Strachey is charged with communistic beliefs. He is in this country on a six months' visa, which still has four months to run.

Arthur Garfield Hays to Defend Strachey

By Associated Press.

New York, March 13—A protest was sent the Department of Labor today on the arrest of John Strachey by the American Civil Liberties Union, which said its attorneys, including Garfield Hays, would appear in Strachey's behalf when the department reviews the case.

Alfred Dashiell, managing editor of Scribner's Magazine, said:

"Although entirely unsympathetic with John Strachey's political views, I strongly protest his arrest."

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, said:

"I am, of course, opposed to excluding men from the country because of political opinions."

John Dewey, professor emeritus of Columbia University, blamed Strachey's arrest on "busy-bodies engaged in a Red scare."

Strachey Booked for Lecture Here

John Strachey, English writer, who faces deportation proceedings in Chicago, was scheduled to lecture at Ford Hall Forum here March 28.

He appeared here under the same auspices on January 6.

300 GREEKS Held as Rebels FACE DEATH

Athens, March 13—The possibility of death before a firing squad faced more than 300 Greek rebels today as the government instituted wholesale courts martial for those implicated in the July revolt.

The belief that a mass execution would mark the final chapter of the uprising was widely held in Athens, where it was recalled that a similar fate befell the leaders of Greece's last revolution.

"COUNT" Called "Hyena"

Gloucester, March 13—Michel P. Vucanovich, Count of Dalmatia, Austria, today heard himself called a "hyena" and a "boob" in district court here today.

The Count, manager of the Gorden-Few Cold Storage Company here, was arraigned on an attack charge brought by Willis Lowrie, a former employe. It was continued. Counsel for Lowrie hurled the "hyena" charges at him when the Count testified Lowrie pulled him from his chair in his office and attacked him.

HOUSEKEEPERS For ERA Workers

To care for the cooking and cleaning in homes where ERA workers reside and where the housewife is either busy or too ill to do this work herself, a project has been approved for Medford by the ERA providing eight nurses and 20 housekeepers. A supervisor and assistant brings the total to 30 women. Twelve more workers, both male and female, will be employed under ERA to keep an inventory of all city owned property in Medford.

KILGALLEN'S ARTICLE

(This is the third of a series of articles by a reporter of the Hauptmann trial on untold stories of the case.)

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1935, International News Service.

New York, March 13—Writers covering the Bruno Richard Hauptmann murder trial in the pleasant little town of Flemington, N. J., were swamped with the heaviest barrage of "fan mail" they had ever received in reporting a story.

Some of the communications were complimentary, others bitterly resentful, and all of them showing how keenly the public was reacting to what was transpiring in the Hunterdon County courtroom in Flemington.

"Hauptmann is guilty." "Hauptmann is innocent." That was the general tenor.

I received an amazingly large number of letters.

One of the writers even asked intervention by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. For obvious reasons, I will not disclose names of the writers of some communications.

From the head of an electrical firm in Bonham, Texas, I received a letter stating that the writer had read my interview with Hauptmann in his cell after the defendant was sentenced to die in the electric chair. He asked would I see that an attached letter to President Roosevelt was delivered into the latter's hands.

His letter to President Roosevelt said, in part:

"Having read all the news accounts of the monstrous case of Hauptmann, finishing with the 40-minute interview by James L. Kilgallen to the defendant's cell, I am firmly convinced that a desperate miscarriage of justice has occurred. . . . Circumstances point to Hauptmann's guilt—but not conclusive. Other circumstances proclaim his innocence. Mr. President, hear his cry—a foreigner pleading as only a foreigner can. He says he will die like a man—if he has to—for a job he didn't do."

From Pasadena, Cal., I received a letter which said in part:

"Your article about Bruno Hauptmann February 13 was the first sane and fair one in a long time . . . I am convinced that Hauptmann has told the truth . . . Many believe that when the truth will be revealed in this case it will be as amazing as the Dreyfuss case of long ago. Thanks for the fairness in your article. We of the public were getting pleading as only a foreigner can. He says he will die like a man—if he has to—for a job he didn't do."

From Pasadena, Cal., I received a letter which said in part:

"Your article about Bruno Hauptmann February 13 was the first sane and fair one in a long time . . . I am convinced that Hauptmann has told the truth . . . Many believe that when the truth will be revealed in this case it will be as amazing as the Dreyfuss case of long ago. Thanks for the fairness in your article. We of the public were getting tired of all the mental filth that has been served in the papers. God bless you! Remember your great responsibilities."

A woman, writing from her home in Lyon street, Grand Rapids, Mich., said:

"Certain letters in the Lindbergh ransom note were encircled. Do you know what they spell? . . . It seems to me the evidence should rather exonerate Hauptmann if he is of normal mentality. If he is abnormal, that is if it tends toward imbecility, then it might almost convict him . . . I noticed at once what the encircled letters spelled. I called our police. They seemed enthusiastic and said they would inform the New Jersey authorities."

A pharmacist of Opelika, Alabama, wrote that "everybody in this section," thinks Hauptmann is guilty. He wrote:

"I want to thank you for the magnificent manner in which you have scooped the news for us in the Hauptmann trial. You have performed in a most brilliant manner. You have few equals, no superiors, as a reporter. I was once a reporter myself . . . Nearly everybody in this section believes Hauptmann is dripping with guilt. Regards to Attorney-General David T. Wilentz. I wrote him a letter a few days ago. I know you must be worn out. I don't see how you stand the grind."

A woman in Washington, D. C., wrote that she had been following the trial stories closely. She said she had studied abnormal psychology under Dr. William A. White at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington.

"I think Hauptmann is one," she wrote. "It occurs to me that the state has not attached much significance to the kidnaper's instructions to Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon about how the ransom money was to be delivered. He tells him to put it in a box—and instructs him 'cow to build that box.

"Doesn't it appear rather significant that only a man with a methodical, mechanical turn of mind would stop to consider—in a time like that—just how he wanted the box built?

And so on. Loads of mail. Pro and con. Hauptmann innocent. Hauptmann guilty.

(Mr. Kilgallen will continue his series in an early edition.)

Libby as 'Revenge' Star

HAUPTMANN HORROR HOUSE LURES CROWDS

New York, March 13—The $50-a-month flat where the monstrous plan for the "Crime of the Century" was hatched will become one of New York's show places and a gold mine for its owner if present plans of Max Rausch materialize.

The flat is Bruno Richard Hauptmann's former home in the Bronx. Rausch is the owner.

Ever since Hauptmann was arrested as the kidnaper-murderer of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., streams of sightseers have filed out to the Rausch home.

They have worked the doorbell overtime, using every pretext to get into the flat where Hauptmann lived. They want to see the hole in the attic floor which once contained part of the famous "kidnap ladder." They want to see the closet where the ransom money was stored.

They want to get into the garage to see where Hauptmann hid the Lindbergh blood money and a strange German pistol. They have trampled down the rose bushes.

Talking Museum

Rausch and his mother have dwelt like goldfish before the eyes of the staring mob.

Now, Rausch revealed today, he plans to cash in on the curious.

With the aid of promoters who have approached him, he plans to turn the house into a bizarre, talking museum, Rausch said.

Photographs telling the whole story of the Hauptmann case from his arrest last Sept. 19 to his conviction, Feb. 13, will be enlarged to the size of murals and will panel the walls of the Hauptmann rooms, attic and garage.

Visitors will gaze on life-size images of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Anne Lindbergh, their slain son, of Hauptmann, his wife, Anna, their baby, Mannfried, Attorney-General Wilentz of New Jersey, Attorney Edward J. Reilly, Justice Trenchard, the Hunterdon county jury, Dr. oJhn F. "Jafsie" Condon and others who figured in the trial. They want to see the closet where the ransom money was stored.

As they are led on their tour of the premises loud speakers attached to phonograph records will blare transcriptions of dramatic episodes from the trial, acted out by impersonators.

Rausch's front room will be converted into a box office and special sightseeing buses from Times square will be routed to his home.

The only obstacle in the way of his plan is the state of New Jersey, which has paid $50 a month rent for the flat since Hauptmann's arrest; the Bronx landlord said. Jersey officials so far have expressed an unwillingness to permit anybody into the flat, except on official business, until the Hauptmann case is finally closed, by the electric chair or otherwise.

Lindy Case Cost Over a Million

By Universal Service

Trenton, N. J., March 13—First official estimates of the cost of Lindbergh baby kidnaping investigation and the Hauptmann trial, running beyond a million dollars, were made public here.

The legislative joint committee on appropriations approved $80,000 for the remaining obligations of the trial.

Attorney-General Wilentz earlier obtained a $50,000 appropriation.

Senator C. R. Powell, commented to Assistant Attorney General Lanigan:

"You certainly put on a swell show for the world. You are establishing a precedent here but I suppose we have to do it."

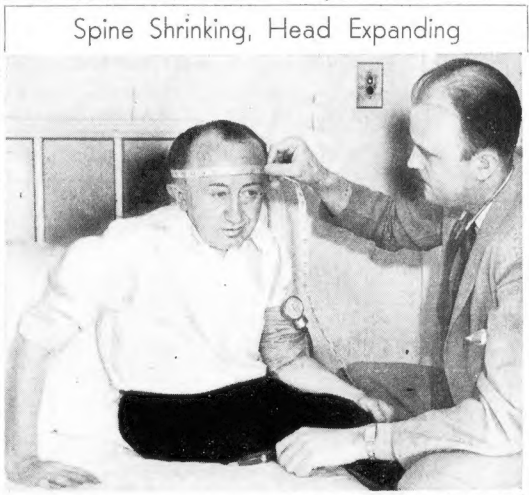
The precedent was the payment by the state of the trial costs which usually would be charged against Hunterdon county. Lanigan said:

"The kidnaping cost more than a million dollars, including the trial of Hauptmann and the investigation that preceded it in New York and other cities plus part of the cost of federal government work."

Packing Strike Ends

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 13 (AP)—Sioux Falls' packing house strike, which has kept nearly 1500 men idle since Saturday, ended today in a compromise agreement reached at a conference called by a representative of Governor Tom Berry.

Spine Shrinking, Head Expanding



GEORGE BOCKLET

DR. FRANK G. NOLAN

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

George Bocklet, 49-year-old California artist, is victim of a rare ailment which has caused his spine to shrink four inches in a year, and his skull to expand several hat sizes. He is shown here being examined by Dr. Frank G. Nolan, who is measuring his constantly swelling head.

WILL In Libby Row BARED

REYNOLDS CUT OFF FIRST BABY

By Associated Press

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 13—An allegation that Smith Reynolds sought legal advice upon disinheriting his first wife and the latter's daughter, Anne, within two months after the child's birth was made by H. G. Hudson, attorney for the Reynolds family.

He made the statement in opening arguments today in Judge Clayton Moore's court on a proposed settlement of Reynolds' $30,000,000 estate.

Hudson outlined negotiations leading to the pre-divorce agreement whereby the young tobacco heir settled $500,000 each upon his first wife, the former Anne Cannon, and upon Baby Anne, defending the legality of the settlement. The Cabarrus Bank and Trust Company of Concord, co-guardian of the daughter, has attacked the settlement as invalid.

The attorney recalled that the tobacco heir actually made a will in New York in 1931, leaving to the two only $50,000 each.

The first wife obtained a Reno, Nev., divorce in November, 1931, and six days later Reynolds married Libby Holman, Broadway torch singer.

Backed by Family

Members of the millionaire Reynolds family joined with Libby today in her fight.

The record showed Will N. Reynolds, noted sportsman, united with the brother and sisters of young Reynolds in standing by a family settlement.

Reynolds' affidavit was submitted before arguments were in order on the family offer to settle 37½ per cent of the estate upon Anne, four-year-old offspring of his first marriage; 25 per cent upon Christopher, and 37½ per cent for creation of a benevolent foundation.

Tests Give Shrinking Man Hope

By Associated Press.

Los Angeles, March 13—Launched on a series of scientific tests, Dr. Frank G. Nolan, Hollywood physician and surgeon, today sought to find out why the body of George Bocklet is shrinking and his head enlarging.

Bocklet, 49-year-old commercial artist of Azusa, Cal., who with sardonic humor says his strange malady is making him look "more and more like an ape," was brought to a sanitarium here.

Within the last year Bocklet has lost four inches in height and his hat size has increased 6¾ to 8¾. The normal circumference of his head should be about 22 inches. It is 26 inches.

Dr. Nolan today was to make basal metabolism tests and tomorrow he will inoculate guinea pigs and rabbits with samples of Bocklet's blood.

CUBAN Strike Broken, OFFICIALS SAY

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Havana, March 13—Police and soldiers arrested and jailed treasury department employes today as Havana, under severe martial law, regained something of the appearance of normal life.

Under threats of arrest, many government employes who had been on strike returned to work and street car and bus traffic increased.

Government officials said they believed the strike was broken.

WANTED! Townsend LEADER

WARRING CHIEF HAS CANDIDATE

Warring leaders of the Townsend plan in New England were marking time today while a search went on for "proper material" to lead the movement here.

Charles M. Hawks, trouble shooter for Dr. Francis E. Townsend, admitted he was having difficulty in choosing a manager because of a scarcity of the proper candidates.

And while he was conducting his search there were conflicting reports on whether Dr. Samuel M. Dick and J. Wilfred Corr would quit their organizing work here. But there was no question but what they were at war with the national Townsend group.

Hawks admitted he had one potential candidate in mind, but refused to divulge his identity. He described the man as "humble, absolutely loyal and very fine."

Outlining his requisites for the man to lead the New England Townsend ranks, Hawks said:

"I want a man whose moral standing is above reproach.

"I prefer not to have a business man who undoubtedly would be too busy to devote the needed time to this worthy socialistic movement.

"I want a man who is retiring rather than bombastic. And the man I have in mind is all of that."

Asked if he was alarmed over the report that President Roosevelt was about to unloose an attack on Townsenders, Hawks replied:

"I am not alarmed because I don't believe Roosevelt would play into the hands of big interests who are trying to kill a large social movement.

"I should be very disappointed if he did, but I won't believe it yet."

Meantime, Dr. Dick and Corr announced a meeting of the local Townsenders at Hotel Manger Saturday afternoon to form a new federation.

Coast Guards Win Life Race

Ship's Officer Brought Ashore for Operation

Battling through fog, snow and choppy seas, coast guardsmen today won a race against death by getting a officer aboard with appendicitis on a collier, to a hospital in time for a successful operation.

The coast guard cutter General Green, stationed at Woods Hole, was notified by the collier Walter D. Noyes off Nobscot in Vineyard sound that Third Officer Marshall B. Taylor was in critical condition.

Racing through the night, the cutter drew alongside the ship and, after great difficulty, succeeded in getting the stricken man aboard. Then they raced him to Vineyard Haven, where an ambulance awaited.

CURLEY Acts on FIN. COM.

FILLS KAPLAN POST TODAY

Governor Curley today was selecting a successor to Judge Jacob J. Kaplan as a member of the Boston Finance Commission.

The matter, he thought, had been solved when he appointed Samuel Kalesky.

He expressed surprise over the fact that Kalesky is a resident of Brookline and announced that he would substitute a new name for presentation to the council today.

"I was under the impression that Mr. Kalesky had been born in Boston and had lived here all his life," the Governor declared. "I will send in another name."

The law requires that members of the commission be residents of Boston for at least three years.

Kaplan Fights

Meanwhile, Judge Kaplan still shouted defiance to the Curley edict that he had been appointed illegally to the finance commission and so was no longer a member of the body.

Judge Kaplan declared that he would fight through the courts any action of the executive council in approving his successor.

Governor Curley said that he considered two vacancies existed in the finance commission. One is left by the resignation of Joseph McKenney, who had been made assistant physical education director for Boston schools.

To fill McKenney's post the governor was prepared to nominate Attorney Philip A. Chapman, former purchasing agent for the City of Boston.

Tunnel Probe

Meanwhile Back Bay Republicans again revived the East Boston tunnel land takings and alleged illegal purchase of bonds for the City of Boston by former Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan.

The House committee on rules will meet next Monday at 11 a. m. to hold a public hearing on a bill introduced by Representative Christian A. Herter providing for a legislative investigating committee to carry on the tunnel probe.

FEAR VIOLENCE At Malden Mill

Added police precautions were being taken today to prevent disorders at the Malden Knitting Mills on Eastern avenue, with large numbers of strikers picketing the plant and crowds of spectators on hand.

Jeers and cat calls greeted the workers entering and leaving the plant under heavy police guard.

PORT AUTHORITY Hearing Friday

Representatives of trucking, railroad and shipping firms are expected to appear in large numbers for a hearing in the State House Friday on a proposal to make the Boston Port Authority a state organization.

Soft for the Fish

Bong! Time to Eat

Coyote Skins

Tough on Gulls

By Associated Press

Chicago, March 13—In the old days, a fish had to step lively to eat. He could consider it a lucky break when a bug came within eating distance.

For some Southern Illinois fish, however, that is being fixed. It is a work relief project—one of the many unusual jobs among the thousands to which relief clients have been assigned.

Bug lights are installed just above the surface of the selected pond, which afterwards becomes a sort of fish riviera. The bug, dazzled, comes close to the water to see the bright lights. The fish grabs him, practically without getting up.

At the next stroke of the chimes, a hundred men quartered in the Roosevelt transient home of Roseburg, Ore., will know what time it is. Two unemployed men beat an iron bell ever half hour, sounding the time a la ship's bell.

The United States treasurer is richer by 1331 coyote skins and 122 bobcat hides as the result of an unusual relief project in southern and eastern Utah. That was the catch of a squad of unemployed men put to work as hunters and trappers.

Relief crews are digging up Indian ruins in Arizona, making artificial legs in Indiana and copying musical scores in Wisconsin.

As difficult an assignment as there is among entertainment projects is that of some Chicago actors and dancers. They are employed to produce a pageant, which in three acts depicts: (1) economic insecurity, (2) futility, and then (3) the dawn of hope.

Cape Cod oysters benefit from another unusual work relief project. Sea gulls were preying on the famous Massachusetts oysters and clam beds. So unemployed men were put on duty as sea gull shooters.

In Arizona jackrabbits are being chased off the desert in Cochise county.

R. H. HEMPHILL CALLS

NRA PRESIDENT'S FIRST BLUNDER

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL
Financial Authority

The President is making a half-hearted effort to preserve the NRA for another two years in an attempt to avoid admission of its spectacular failure to produce beneficial results.

This attempt to preserve the NRA is the President's FIRST SERIOUS MISTAKE and it will be THE PRESIDENT'S MISTAKE. NO POSSIBLE ALIBIS.

The NRA, the AAA and the other alphabetical monstrosities were frankly labelled questionable experiments.

No criticism attaches to the President for their failure.

President Roosevelt was elected on a basis of ACTION.

The electorate did not stop to analyze or approve or disapprove specific measures. The country wanted ACTION OF SOME SORT and gave him a mandate to EXPERIMENT BOLDLY.

They demanded that Congress support every suggested EXPERIMENT.

Jobless Increase

He was to be sole judge of what to try out first, of all the schemes offered. BUT THIS MANDATE WAS CONDITIONED ON A CLEAR UNDERSTANDING THAT HE WOULD ABANDON FAILED EXPERIMENTS INSTANTLY. UNFAVORABLE RESULTS DEVELOPED.

Ample unfortunate results are now visible.

Incomes above $10,000 have increased—incomes below $10,000 have decreased.

EXACTLY THE REVERSE OF THE INTENDED RESULTS, but that is not the worst of the bad news.

The total national income for 1933 is THREE BILLIONS OF DOLLARS LESS THAN IN 1932.

THIS NATION IS THE ONLY REPORTING NATION IN THE CIVILIZED WORLD OF WHICH SUCH A DECREASE IS TRUE.

The present unemployed is 800,000 more than at the inauguration of the NRA.

EVERY OTHER NATION HAS DECREASED ITS NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED.

WE HAVE, according to the latest figures MORE THAN 23,300,000 of our population on relief. AN ALL-TIME RECORD. NEARLY 20 PER CENT of our total population.

EVERY OTHER ENLIGHTENED NATION HAS MATERIALLY REDUCED THE NUMBER OF ITS PEOPLE ON RELIEF.

Food Costs Rise

A TREMENDOUS RISE IN FOOD COSTS AND ADDITIONAL IMPENDING INCREASES WHICH CANNOT BE MET, FURNISH UNMISTAKABLE FORECAST OF THE JAM WHICH IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER.

No competent man can ignore this mass of developed evidence. There is no need for further experiment.

The simple successful programs of England, Australia, Sweden, Argentina and many other countries which have made noticeable progress are available.

EVERY ONE OF THEM HAS FOLLOWED ONE SIMPLE COURSE, AND ONE ONLY.

THEY HAVE EXPANDED THE MONEY OR CREDIT IN CIRCULATION.

BUSINESS HAS INCREASED, UNEMPLOYMENT HAS DECREASED, EXACTLY AS THE MONEY OR ITS SUBSTITUTES IN CIRCULATION HAS BEEN INCREASED IN THOSE FORTUNATE NATIONS.

TO PURSUE FURTHER A COURSE WHICH WAS ALWAYS QUESTIONABLE IN THE FACE OF THE OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE OF FAILURE FROM EVERY ANGLE IS MORE THAN INCOMPETENCE. IT IS SHEER IDIOCY.

IT IS STILL UP TO THE PRESIDENT—TOMORROW MAY BE A DIFFERENT STORY.

BIRTH Control 'Leader' TO TALK HERE

Margaret Sanger, president of the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control, will speak on "The Truth About Birth Control," at the American Home and Youth Conference tomorrow at the Hotel Statler.

Margaret Sanger

In addition to Mrs. Sanger, other personages to address the session will be the Rev. Graham A. Baldwin of Phillips Academy and Sedonia M. Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Association in America.

During her stay in Boston Margaret Sanger will also give talks on birth control at the home of Mrs. Edward D. Brandagee of Commonwealth avenue and at the home of Dr. James M. Faulkner, assistant professor of medicine at Harvard College.

REARDON Dinner to Draw FITZGERALD

Wiring from Palm Beach, Fla., where he is enjoying a brief vacation, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald said he would make every effort to be present for the testimonial dinner to James W. Reardon, famous Boston newspaperman, in the Copley Plaza Sunday night.

For many years the former mayor has been a close friend of Mr. Reardon, who as associate editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser is entering his 32d year as a news executive of the Hearst papers in Boston, and half a century as a newspaperman.

Another addition to the list of speakers is E. Mark Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, who has been associated with Mr. Reardon for years in fraternal orders.

MGR. ROCHE Grows Weaker

STATE Teachers Aid 'OATH'

CIVIC LEAGUE BACKS BILL

Favorable action on the bill requiring the oath of allegiance to the State and Federal constitutions was urged today by the Teachers Civic League of Massachusetts.

Endorsement of the measure was announced by John L. Davoren of Milford, President of the Association, which includes teachers from nearly every section of the Commonwealth.

Davoren, principal of the George E. Stacy School of Milford, said it was the one desire of teachers in his organization to "safeguard the integrity of our profession."

His statement said:

"On behalf of the Teachers Civic League of Massachusetts, I wish to endorse House Bill 1231, a bill to require teachers and other educators to take oath or affirmation to support the state and federal constitutions.

"We feel that the teaching profession rates higher in patriotism and devotion to our government than any other group and it is our desire to safeguard the integrity of our profession.

"A teacher who cannot swear allegiance to his country should not expect employment in a position of trust under that country's laws.

Statute Needed

"We believe in 'academic freedom,' but when that phrase is extended to mean an opportunity for a disloyal teacher to teach the destruction of our American system of government in a public school and at the public expense, it is our conviction that statutory regulation is needed.

"It is not an 'insult' to require a teacher to take an oath of allegiance.

"In a great majority of the classrooms of the state, by school regulation, teachers stand every morning with their pupils and take the oath.

"We believe that the House Bill 1231 represents an opportunity for the teaching profession to make a state-wide demonstration of loyalty which will effectively answer those theorists who profess to see no good in a 'government of the people, for the people, and by the people.' "

ERA PAY For Grid Stars, IS CHARGE

Charges that ERA funds furnished to Greater Boston colleges to aid "needy students" have been used instead to attract football players and other athletes were under investigation today.

One Boston college in particular has gone so far as to enroll 50 to 55 football players on the strength of the ERA income, Director George W. Scott of the ERA educational division, said he had been told.

It wasn't that athletes can't be helped as well as any other "needy student," Director Scott declared, but the money cannot be used to get them to come to college. If there are such abuses, he said, the school so guilty is apt to lose all its ERA income.

MOTHER VISITS Norma in Jail

Mrs. Norman Brighton visited her daughter Norma Millen at Dedham jail for about an hour while Joseph Millen, father of the Millen brothers, was visiting. Mr. Millen told his sons of the delay in their removal from the jail to state prison.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache caused by constipation — you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Heir to Uneasy Crown

The throne of Siam has proved so precarious and uncomfortable that King Prajadipok, after retaining it for many a troubled year, is turning it over now to this 11-year-old nephew, Prince Ananda, who'd no doubt prefer bare feet and a loin cloth to his bejewelled coronation costume. 400 POLICE Detailed to Parade

Police arrangements for the Evacuation Day parade at South Boston Sunday afternoon provide for 400 officers to hold back the crowds, which are expected to total nearly 300,000.

Four lieutenants and 16 sergeants under the command of Captain Edward W. Fallon of the South Boston station will be in charge.

One of the Greatest Studio Couch Values We've Ever Offered . . . and One of the Smartest Studio Couches Designed.

"We want to sell this $49.50 Studio Couch for $27.50," we told this manufacturer. "We can give you an order for 300." He took but a minute to decide —and here's your sale!

This Exquisitely Designed $49.50 Modern Studio Couch

$27.50 Only $3 Down and 75c Weekly

—With Chrome Trim —With Rope Cord Edging
—With Reversible Pillows —With Inner Spring Mattresses

This was one of our fastest selling studio couches at $49.50. Because the manufacturer gave us a specially low price for quantity orders we're able to make the price so attractively low to you. An artist with a superb sense of design and a decided flair for practicability designed this studio couch—and he did a splendid job. The base is trimmed with chromium-plated bands, and stars suggestive of the Napoleon era. Neo-classic touches lend an added touch of distinction. And practical—no end! With reversible plaid pillows, kapok-filled, and inner-spring mattresses, it's as comfort-invoking a piece of furniture as decorative.

This maker has a reputation. For instance, only pure layers of soft felt are used. An additional generous thickness of durable sisal keeps the springs from working through the felt. With such protection, there isn't a slight chance of feeling the springs. Instead of the usual 180 inner springs, we give you 200 (that means greater resiliency—more comfort). This spring unit is encased in snow white muslin—not the usual burlap—and we save you money on every mattress you buy.

War-Bound Cadets Get Sub Scare

STUDENT 'ACES' REACH FRANCE AFTER NIGHT OF HORROR

START STORY TODAY . . . HERE IS WHAT HAPPENED YESTERDAY

When the United States declared war there was only one thought in my mind. I wanted to fly. I was just 23. At my birthday dinner I told my family that I was going to join the Air Service. My mother was heartbroken, but I had made up my mind.

Three months later I was enlisted as Private First Class in the aviation service of the Signal Corps. Three more months and I was one of the lucky ones ordered abroad. There we were to train under French instructors who had actually flown in the war. At Liverpool we took another boat for France . . .

NOW CONTINUE

The night was very dark, the heavy seas and howling wind made real the actual danger of submarines.

* * *

Discussing our fortune to be in the fresh air . . . we yelled simultaneously, "Hold on! Hold on!" and clung to the stack with all our strength. The ship lurched and seemed to roll completely over. Icy waters surged around us; back she rolled and drenched to the skin, we clung together, desperately. Certain that the hold was, after all, at least safe we made our way down through the darkness.

The cadets, huddled together, were seasick. The jam, crackers and cheese had taken effect.

A terrible impact!

The boat trembled, seemed to stop and a submarine attack was a mental reality.

"We're hit!"

"We're sinking!"

Pushing, crowding and thinking a torpedo had struck, all started for the gangway. Stepping back to avoid the surging mob I noticed one chap lying very still, and shaking him I said "Get up, the boat may sink."

"Think so?" he gulped. "Sink. Thank God!" He rolled over in a dead stupor.

A seemingly endless night and at nine o'clock the next morning we anchored in the harbor of Le Havre. The men, cold and sick, were motionless and speechless . . . filth, dirt, the odor of vomiting. An hour later we stood on the dock in a slight rain wondering what the next move would be.

War Near

A Red Cross train, carrying wounded soldiers from the front, rumbled onto the pier. Hundreds of men, on stretchers, were unloaded. We watched. Bodies under blankets, heads swathed in bandages, vacant eyes staring but not seeing, helpless, they were carried to a hospital ship. Sailing back to England. We made no comment. Silently watching, we had our own thoughts. France, we were in France, all right. Maimed, mutilated, blinded, quiet, they were second rate cargo from a first line trench. The war did not seem very far away, now.

Our own physical exhaustion was, by contrast, momentarily forgotten. We lined up, roll was called and we marched along a muddy road.

Three miles away, high upon a hill, circular, dirty-grey, weather-beaten tents, like ghosts of a deserted camp, stood pitched in a sea of sticky mud. The day was dismal and cold rain drizzled on us as we stood, in groups of three and four, like bewildered sheep in a storm on the narrow duckboards.

Uncertainty and bewilderment smothered us with suppositions. How long would we be here? What next? When would we start flying?

Noon. We lined up before a small, wooden building nearby. A single French soldier, with a flowing black mustache and a frayed, faded-blue uniform, silently handed out corned bully beef, mustard pickles and thin slices of bread.

His amused yet sympathetic smile clearly bespoke his veteran's mind . . . Another bunch of ignorant, uninitiated Americans in France to right a war.

Supper Time

Supper time. Another handout of corned bully beef, mustard pickles, thin slices of bread and bitter, black coffee. Plainly, food was scarce.

Twelve men to a tent. The sputtering light of a single candle and the heavy bedding rolls, close together on the wet floor boards, were like sections of a huge, soggy pie.

The smell of damp clothes, the dustiness of a rain-soaked tent and the odorous reminders of bully beef and pickles were far from conducive to slumber as, pulling off our shoes, we crawled in for the night.

Sleep came in fitful snatches. Squirming in our cramped quarters we tossed from back to side and side to belly, until the gray morning.

The same monotonous drizzle of rain. Cramped, with stiff muscles, we struggled to haul on our wet shoes.

Charged to keep in constant touch with the camp for sudden orders, we were allowed to go to Le Havre.

British troops back from the front for reorganization or rest and troops from England on their way to the front were our only contacts with our Allies.

Officers in the cafes nodded at us. Although they were pleasant enough we accredited their condescending bows to the knowledge of experienced soldiers against the ignorance of a mere handful of recruits, fresh and ambitious, arriving in France to throw the balance of power against Germany.

We knew we were green. But, give us some training. Send us to the front and we'd show them.

Children in wooden sabots played in the streets. Men, too old for a service, looked at us stupidly and women haggled in the market shops for fish. We read the French, and signs and "Chocolat Meunier" was pasted everywhere. We were in France, but it was far from interesting. Back to camp.

No orders yet. A second night in the crowded tents and we felt like a bunch of cattle. Dumped at Liverpool, herded to Borden, unloaded at Southampton and now packed in at Le Havre, where were we going?

A hell of a "rest" camp this was! But it was only October, 1917, the arrangements would be better later.

Driving Rain

The third morning, early and in a driving rain, we entrained. A rumor that we were bound for Issoudun—the great aviation center—and talk of flying was rife. This, the last leg of our journey, would bring us to a flying field!

We changed trains at Orleans and arrived at Issoudun just after dark. We were tired, dirty, and had never had our clothes off nor enjoyed a good night's sleep since arriving at Liverpool, over ten days before.

Army trucks lined the depot.

With 20 men in each, they bumped and careened over 12 miles of rough road. Nothing could be seen in the black night, and jumping out we landed knee deep in a sea of mud.

"Get together and march."

Sheplike, stumbling and groping, we followed and soon came to a newly constructed barracks. Inside were rows of double-tiered bunks; two beams with burlap stretched between.

Dry and clean, they were a welcome sight, for here at last was a place to lie down alone, in comfort, and Beauchamp and I appropriated two together.

What a good feeling to stretch out at full length. Issoudun—at last.

A good night's sleep was before us and we felt contented. We might start flying tomorrow. For we had reached our dreamed-of destination, a flying field in France.

Ordered Out

Fifteen minutes later the Major ordered us out. We lined up in front of the barracks and in single file, on a narrow wooden walk marched to the door of a small building where a captain was issuing blankets from some new bales.

"Give these men five blankets apiece," said the Major.

"I am only going to give them three."

The Major flew into a rage. "Give these men five blankets," he roared. "I don't want any damned captain telling me what to do."

The Major, although strict and exacting, did everything possible to care for us and now at the end of a tiresome journey he saw that we had a good rest—we received the five blankets.

Our fondest dream since graduating from ground school.

It was not much of a flying field. Only three barracks were erected at the main part of the camp, but about half a mile away two hangars housed a few Nieuports, which were examined with great interest.

The camp site was a veritable set of mud, making it almost impossible to get from place to place. We did not think too much of this so-called "American Aviation Center," but we were anxious to start flying.

Our major, receiving orders to proceed to Paris, turned his command over to another officer, who was none other than the captain who had issued the blankets.

As the major bid us goodbye he complimented us highly on our conduct and apologized for some of his scathing remarks. This, we felt, was a rare thing for an officer to do.

Put to work immediately, we helped build the camp, laid miniature railroads, dug ditches, constructed roads—every sort of manual labor. This we resented. It broke our spirit and we became sullen.

We had gone through grueling weeks of ground school, lived up to every requirement, studied and successfully passed all problems pertaining to flying and as a reward of merit were sent to France for special training.

But, here we were wallowing in a sea of mud, carrying rails, shoveling dirt and performing countless offensive jobs entirely foreign to aviation.

Our morose attitude was clear to the camp authorities.

Insult to Injury

Being ordered to answer rollcall every morning at 5 o'clock was insult added to injury. What, we thought, has all this to do with flying?

In the middle of November, early mornings were cold and dark. At 5 a. m. a solitary figure tramped through the barracks pounding lustily on a large dishpan.

This jarring noise summoned us to assemble outside the barracks and wait in the dark and cold until someone came along, read our names and, with great authority, dismissed us.

We were supposed to kill time until 7 o'clock breakfast, then go to work.

We saw no necessity nor cane reason for getting up at five with nothing to do for hours, and the consequence was that during the dishpan racket about twenty-five angry men lined up while the others rolled over.

Faces could not be seen in the darkness and answers of "Here" came from every direction. Some, shivering in line, generously answered for four or five friends who lay snuggled in warm blankets.

Others lustily called from their bunks and in desperation the officer would dismiss the few stragglers. As time went on fewer responded to the sonorous noise of the dishpan.

We grumbled and became disobedient. Discontentment permeated the barracks and the long evenings dragged heavily. Slight quarrels about nothing became heated arguments and ugly threats invited fist fights.

One fellow plagued us all. Sitting on his upper bunk, feet dangling over the side, he would buzz-buzz-buzz on a wireless set. Learning the code with his buzz-buzz-buzz.

Practicing to send 12 words a minute with his buzz-buzz-buzz. This devil's tatoo, incessantly buzzing hour after hour, grated on our already raw nerves.

"Say! cut out that damned racket!" . . . "Take that buzzer outside, or I'll rip it to pieces." . . . Abusive language and threats made no impression. There he sat, smirking with his buzz-buzz-buzz.

Nine o'clock. Defiantly he drummed away. The fellow on the bunk beneath, his feet dangling in his face every time he moved in or out, blew up.

A Fight

"Say, practice in the day time, will you, some one might want to sleep."

"It's only 8 o'clock, dearie."

"Nine o'clock or 12 o'clock, cut it out!"

No answer but the provoking buzz-buzz-buzz.

"Stop that, hear me? or I'll throw you and your damned machine outdoors."

"Oh! and do you own the barracks, sweetheart?" he was sarcastic.

It was his bunk, it was his set, and he'd do what he damn well pleased.

The fellow in the lower bunk jumped out and grabbed at one dangling leg. A kick in the chest sent him sprawling. Swearing, he got up, clutched a firm hold this time and, with a mighty jerk, slammed him whackko on the floor.

Stunned, the buzzer struggled slowly to his feet and as he staggered another wallop full on the jaw sent him reeling. Down he went with a thud.

A fight! Like bees to fresh honey we swarmed around.

The wireless man was on his back. His eyes showed white as his assailant, straddling his stomach, pasted him in the face.

Better separate them. "Oh, no you don't," a tall, raw-boned cadet from Texas drawled. "You fellows all been talkin' fight, now I guess we'll have one."

Buzz-Buzz Ends

They struggled for a hold. They fought in real earnest. They rolled over and a strong arm encircling the wireless fellow's throat was pressing tight—tighter—tighter.

"He's got a strangle-hold!"

"Never you mind," said the Texan. "I'll handle this."

The buzzer's body rose and then slumped back. His hands dropped to the floor, his eyes were glassy and his tongue hung out.

"Guess that's about enough," the Texan grabbed them both by the neck and, with angered strength, shoved them apart.

That was the end of the buzz-buzz-buzz.

Tomorrow, with no flying experience, we are ordered to train on Nieuports—the most dangerous of combat planes. Don't miss tomorrow's American.

His amused yet sympathetic smile clearly bespoke his veteran's mind — another bunch of ignorant, uninitiated Americans in France to fight a war. We knew we were green. But give us some training. Send us to the front and we'd show them.

LOU HARLOW

Read This First

Not just another good war story, but acclaimed by noted authors and an appreciative reading public as the greatest true tale to come from that maelstrom of blood and steel, that almost stripped the world of its manhood, "Heaven High—Hell Deep," continuing in serial form in today's Boston Evening American, gives an uncensored account of the thrilling, mad and despairing days that went together to form a soldier's life in wartime.

Norman Archibald, who is not a professional author, with untutored genius, because he has actually lived these experiences, makes you sick with apprehension when a buddy fails to return with the flight, makes you thrill with anticipation of an aerial duel with the enemy, makes you feel the thud of bullets as they tear at his frail plane.

In fact, every experience is relived by the reader.

BIOGRAPHY—ADVENTURE

A MAN CALLED CERVANTES—By Bruno Frank—Translated by H. T. Lowe Porter—Viking Press.

Nearly four centuries ago this man called Cervantes created a timeless character and called him Don Quixote.

Little is known of Cervantes save through this work but Frank has skillfully woven history and legend and drawn a living picture.

In powerful, staccato sentences, he tells the tale of a adventurer whose left hand was shot away fighting for the Cross at Lepanto, but whose right survived to pen the deathless satire of medieval gallantry.

ATTACK ON EVEREST—By Hugh Ruttledge. Robert M. McBride & Company.

Here is a thrilling account of the latest attempt to climb mighty Mount Everest in Tibet, by the leader of the British Expedition of 1933.

How this brave little band of mountaineers battled blizzards, the rarefied air of lofty Himalayas and the devastating monsoon in their desperate—but vain—effort to conquer in the name of mankind "this last great stronghold of nature" is pure adventure.

ROSS

IN PROBE

Charles N. Ross, son of the mayor of Quincy, testified today at the ouster hearing of his father, that he has been "unable to find" a checkbook containing 40 stubs since the election campaign.

Young Ross admitted he has collected $4085 and that there was a $155 bank balance after the primary, making a total of $4240 spent in the campaign. About $885 was given him by his father, and young Ross said he collected the rest from office holders, merchants and friends.

In addition to the missing check book, 70 checks were also unaccounted for, witness admitted.

All bills of the campaign have been destroyed, witness admitted, but he asserted one of the clerks at his store must have done it without his knowledge.

BONUS

Vote Expected

NEXT MONDAY

By International News Service.

Washington, March 13—Sponsors of the rival Vinson and atman $2,000,000,000 cash bonus bills sparred for advantage today as the House rules committee head pleas for a preferred status for both measures.

The ways and means committee, which endorsed teh Vinson bill backed by the American Legion, also agreed to seek a vote on the Patman inflation bill sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

But leaders in the inflation phase of the bonus fight each sought tactical advantages in putting the issue before teh House for decision.

Plans called for the House to begin on the bonus issues tomorrow, with a final vote expected by Monday or Tuesday.

Get Reno Decree

'Just Tell 'Em You're From Boston, Too!

It seems a long way from Boston, this scene of royal splendor, as Prince Jaime of Spain, renouncing a crown which is lost to him anyway, is married at Rome to the former Mlle. Emanuella de Dampierre, a vicompte's daughter. But here's a secret! It's possible to "crash" the Prince Jaime gate! Just say, "I'm from Boston, too," and that'll be your card of entry. Because the brand new princess is the granddaughter of Josephine Curtis of Boston, descendant of a long line of prominent New Englanders.

Huey's 2-Fisted Foe to 'Knock' Him in Congress

Washington, March 13—Formation of an "anti-Long" bloc in the House of Representatives, in an effort to whittle down the power of the Kingfish, either by direct attack or by ridicule, were underway today.

The spearhead of the group is Representative P. L. Gassaway (D., Okla.)

Saying that Representative Dies (D., Texas), Representative Disney (D Okla.), and "12 or 15 others" ar. holding frequent consultations on the matter, Gassaway, a wearer of the leather boots and string bow tie of the cow country, said:

"We are the meanest scoundrels in Congress and we are d——n tired of Huey's line of palaver. We are going to knock him over."

"See, that hand there?" the Congressman asked as he extended a gnarled fist.

"See where those fingers were broken.

"I smashed my fist when I knocked out a feller years ago back home when he slandered Teddy Roosevelt. And Teddy was a Republican.

"We don't like for Long to keep attacking our President and I don't have a bodyguard either."

"Do you carry a gun?" Gassaway was asked.

"Hell, no," he laughed. "We had a little scrap back in Oklahoma once and when I got mad at a feller I handed my gun to one of the boys and said, 'hold this revolver while I beat that guy up.'

"And I beat him up all right."

Ridicule was the strategy advised by Disney for the combat with the Louisianan. He said:

"We ought to keep this thing a laugh as long as we can. If really is very serious and we think the best way to keep the country from taking Long seriously is to make the whole thing comic."

SIX MORE

Seek P. O. Job

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The names of six additional applicants for the Boston postmastership were recorded today by the Civil Service Commission, bringing the list of aspirants to 20.

The commission pointed out that it was likely other applications, filed within the deadline of last night, were still passing through the routine of the office.

The new names made public today are John F. Daly, Ernest W. Dulles, Percival H. Loshe, Edmund S. McCarthy, Mrs. Louise J. Carter and Francis X. Tyrell.

BANK DIRECTOR

"Without Stock"

Charles McGrath, Newton Center oil salesman, became a director of the Brockton Trust Company without paying a cent for the stock needed to qualify him, he testified today.

McGrath, appearing before Arthur Black, master in the hearing of the $3,200,000 suit of affiliated banks against the Federal Nation Bank, said he was offered the directorship by Malcolm J. Logan, president of the Brockton Trust Company.

OIL MEN

Meet Here in

CONVENTION

Over 1500 New England oil men will convene tomorrow at their 11th annual convention in the Copley Plaza.

Governor James M. Curley will extend greetings to the oil men as he did in the past years as mayor of Boston.

P. A. Brewer is the director of the convention, which is being held under the auspices of the Independent Oil Men's Association.

A feature of the meeting will be the award of more than 100 prizes, valued at over $1500, donated by members of the oil industry and associated industries.

State Senator William H. Davenport, chairman of the committee on taxation, will address the board of directors of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange at a dinner to be held tonight at the Hotel Myles Standish.

Linseed Oil Source of Cold "Cure"

By Universal Service

Chicago, March 13—The "common cold"—age-old puzzle of scientists and medical men generally—may at last be on the way to extinction through the accidental discovery of Miss Mildred Oncken, a physiological chemist.

Writing in the current issue of the Illinois Medi- l Journal, Miss Oncken said that a group of workers within her laboratories suffered from colds, except in one department, and there a group handled linolenic and linoleid acids, derivatives of linseed oil with a high vitamin "F" content. She added:

Workers in this department did not develop a single cold, although before working in this department they had as many colds as others."

Using rats for experimental purposes, sniffling noses were relieved by injections of the acids, and doses administered to rats before they were segregated with other rats suffering from colds prevented contagion.

BANQUET

Saturday for

2D DIVISION

The annual Second Division banquet will take place at the Hotel Bradford, Saturday evening. Don Florentio, a Second Division man, and his partner, Estelle, will head the list of entertainers.

The committee is headed by A. V. Palmieri, senior vice-commander. Other members include Dr. George Gilch, Joseph Brundidge, Hugh McElaney, Leo Spotswood, Joseph Silva, William Armstrong, John McCormack, Daniel Leary and Kimon Scopollitis.

Among the invited guests are: General Charles H. Cole, Colonel Edwin Barker, United States marine barracks; Colonel L. Vernon Briggs, Major George Mulcahy and Major Marvin Drury.

Hospital Busses

Motor coach service to City Hospital will be furnished from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. by an extension of the Kneisland-Northampton and the Savin Hill avenue Northampton route, beginning today.

Lindy's Wife Tops List of 'Charming'

By Universal Service

Chicago, March 13—Modern men and women need to be shipwrecked upon a desert island to develop their resources of charm, Miss Margery Wilson, charm psychologist, told several hundred University of Chicago co-eds.

Miss Wilson also startled her auditors by listing the "10 most charming persons in America." They include:

Mrs. Anne Lindbergh—Because she has charm enough for two.

Will Rogers—Because he is able to amuse people while flicking them in the raw.

Jane Adams—Because of her passion for redeeming humanity.

Lady Mendl—Because she has managed to convey her own ideas of beautiful homes to the average person.

Mary Pickford—Because her character as a woman is her greatest role.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heinck—Because she improves with age.

This Is Life

ROBERT E. ROGERS

There are a lot of people, I suspect, who would very much like to hear one of President Roosevelt's Sunday evening fireside talks just about now.

Particularly just about now. It is a long time since we heard what he has in mind.

Robert E. Rogers

We are constantly being perplexed by the news that he is swinging definitely toward the right, to the left—that he will not press the four billion work relief bill, that he will push it through, that he will veto the bonus, that he already knows he is licked on the issue—and so on and so on.

The end of the honeymoon, so often and repeatedly prophesied, has definitely arrived. But the figure is stale and trite and ridiculous. Much better the metaphor Pinero used in an old play of his, "Mid Channel," where the crossing is most uncomfortable, the waves highest, the chances of shipwreck most likely. Certainly, March, 1935, will mark that spot on the crossing's chart.

The game of radio puss-in-the-corner which the general, the senator and the reverend have been playing, has left F. D. R. without a tree to hang on to.

To the public he seems to stand uncertainly in the middle, like a good child who has got into a game with the neighborhood rowdies and realizes it too late.

About the Senator there is no doubt. He is out for the President's scalp if he can get it, by every means possible.

The general, the bullying big boy friend who is so strong for the President, is likely to get him into serious trouble.

However much his handing of the senator and the reverend may have been approved in certain quarters, his contemptuous references to the unsatisfied unemployed cannot help make for bitterness.

And the reverend also, mightily protesting his loyalty to the President as the heaven-sent leader of his movement, makes a very curious impression when he implies broadly, as he did on Monday evening, that Mr. Roosevelt is only a puppet President, who dances to strings held by the Wall Street gang of international bankers.

The President will probably find some adequate method of dealing with the senator.

As for the other two, God save the President from his friends!

From his friends, who, pretending the highest loyalty and the deepest confidence in him, misrepresent him blatantly or stab him in the back "in a spirit of love." We believe that neither of them represents him.

But it is so very hard to know. All we get about that White House policies are interpretations, guesses, propaganda.

If the President would only speak out, tell us what he has in his mind, indicate which way he is heading!

CURLEY Budget Plea BACKED

VOTERS SPUR LEGISLATORS

State legislators today were already hearing from constituents who had listened to Governor Curley's appeal that citizens help in restoring items slashed from his 1935 budget.

The governor based his plea on grounds that the program on which the budget is based provides for enduring benefits to the entire Commonwealth and that all persons should take an interest.

The budget was cut $206,876, and nearly $2,000,000 was held up by the House ways and means committee pending action on the governor's recommendations to the Legislature.

Governor Curley pointed to the reduction in the appropriation for the governor's office. He said he was certain that a "more minute examination" of its items would have showed the committee the increased business and burdens of that office.

He pointed to other items slashed or held up. One of them was $750,000 for extra help to make possible the 48-hour week in all state institutions.

In this, the governor pointed out, the necessity was apparent, since, under present conditions, many employes are now working 60 hours or more weekly.

The $60,000 he asks for a National Guard camp on Cape Cod, the governor said, would be supplemented by a federal expenditure of $1,750,000. He declared that this project would mean employment of 1500 men at least for six months or more.

Concerning his conservation program, calling for $100,000, the governor said that conservation and propagation of birds would pay dividends in destruction of insects and pest life.

The $100,000 asked to advertise the state was part of the New England program for which two other states have already made appropriations, he declared.

DEAD IN GARAGE
In Arlington

Albert J. Basso, 32, employe of a Back Bay insurance company was found dead today in his garage in Scituate street, Arlington.

Dr. Edward W. Feeley said he had been dead several hours.

Arlington firemen responded with an inhalator but it was of no avail.

Basso was unmarried and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Basso. The family formerly lived in Orient Heights.

BOSTON PAIRS
Out of Bridge Final

New York, March 13 (AP)—Play in the Eastern contract bridge championships moved toward the semi-final rounds today, with eight teams qualified in the team-of-four competition for the Curt Reisinger trophy and 56 pairs in the running for the Julian Goldman cup.

The field in the Goldman pairs was reduced from 124 last night in play which saw most of the out-of-town entrants eliminated.

Among the players who failed to qualify for the pair competition were Frank E. Perkins, Robert Kimball, Norman J. Bonney and W. Mark Noble of Boston.

HORSES AT $1.25
Court Sets Price

Taunton, March 13—Judge Frederick E. Austin in District Court placed the price of three horses at $1.25 each, the money to be paid by the S. P. C. A. to Louis Gettlin of Fall River, owner of the animals. The court ordered the horses to be killed humanely.

A petition for the horses to be killed was brought by the S. P. C. A. after the animals had been removed from a truck which was being used to convey them from Fall River to another city. The court found them unfit for work.

HARVARD BELL
Stopped by Cold

Now comes the question of how much colder it is in the belfry of Memorial hall in Harvard yard than it is on the ground.

The bell, which signals change of classes and the passing of hours, quit ringing yesterday. Nor was it ringing today. Charles A. Apted, commander of Harvard police, denied the clapper had been stolen again. He explained:

"It's much colder up there and the clapper merely freezes. We're working now to thaw it out."

BUS Crash Tip WINS

MELROSE MAN GETS $25

By The News Tip Editor

Far ahead of competitors, the Boston Evening American told its readers full details of a Melrose bus crash that injured many last week.

The speed was due largely to fast work on the part of Herbert Anderson of 802 Main street, Melrose. His tip enabled the machinery of this newspaper to get working. He wins first prize of $25 in the weekly awards that total $50.

Three others won $5 awards. J. C. McDonald of Lynn for a tip on a big fire, and two who asked that their names be withheld. One gave a story on the suicide of a Quincy woman. The other reported activities of Governor Curley at Newark, N. J.

Ten other awards of $1 each were given to:

William Pratt of Stanford st., West End. Tip on a raid.
(Name withheld.) Tip on a West End suicide.
(Name withheld.) Tip on a Malden suicide.
(Name withheld.) Tip on a steams'up suicide.
Mary L. Martin of Felts ave., Medford. Tip on a collision.
(Name withheld.) Tip on a Cambridge eviction.
Mike Lewis of Chambers st., West End. Tip on an accident.
Lester Stephenson of Winthrop st., Melrose. Tip on a burglary.
Mrs. Marion Shaughnessy of Broadway, South Boston. Tip on a fire.
(Name withheld.) Tip on the collapse of a girl.

There is still time to share in the weekly awards. When you see news call the News Tip Editor—Liberty 4000.

Cubic Inch One Ton

By Hiram Percy Maxim

Copyright, 1935, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The material of which the star Sirius B is composed is very heavy. One cubic inch of it weighs a ton.

One cubic inch of water weighs a little over half an ounce.

The same amount of lead weighs 6½ ounces. Those of us who are familiar with mercury, or quicksilver, know that a cubic inch of it weighs 8 ounces.

Few of us meet much platinum, of which a cubic inch weighs 12½ ounces, nearly twice as much as lead. There are heavier substances than platinum, but they are rare.

When we disregard our earth and look elsewhere in the Cosmos for heavy stuff we encounter the above mentioned faint companion of the star Sirius. It is one of the white dwarf stars.

Sirius itself, because of its great size and brilliance, is the best known of the stars. Its faint companion has been for many years an interesting object of study. Its material is 4000 times heavier than lead and 2600 times heavier than platinum.

Surprising Weight

Bed rock granite, the material of which the Earth may be considered as being built, weighs a little over 1½ ounces to the cubic inch. Paving stones are granite and average 4½ by 5 by 8 inches.

They weigh 16½ pounds, but a paving stone made of material packed as closely as that of Sirius B would weigh 180 tons, or as much as two large locomotives.

The only way we can conceive such weight being condensed in such small space, is by imagining that the very atoms of the matter composing the star are in such terrific agitation that they have been stripped of their electrons down to the bare central nuclei.

As the nucleus is 99.95 per cent of any atom's weight, it is seen that the surrounding electrons are, therefore, relatively very light.

Putting on Weight

When the latter are stripped from, or driven out of the atom, the nuclei can get close together, enormously increasing the number of them per cubic inch, and immediately intensifying the weight.

There are only a few of these white dwarfs known. Besides Sirius B, there are the brighter of the two companions of 02 Eridani, Van Maanen's star, the faint companion of Procyon, and a few others.

Here on cool earth we have nothing existing under the conditions prevailing on these white dwarfs. In the center of Sun the temperature is millions of degrees. But in the white dwarfs it is hundreds of times hotter.

As our search through the Cosmos continues, we probably shall find bodies where the concentration exceeds that of Sirius B, or Van Maanen's star.

Already we have found one which suggests that a cubic inch may weigh a hundred tons!

POLICE Gun Victim Gets TRANSFUSION

Angelo Antonetti, 17, South Boston youth, shot in the back Monday night while allegedly stripping a vacant house of lead pipe, underwent an emergency operation and blood transfusion at City Hospital.

A blood clot and segments of four vertebrae were removed in an attempt to reduce the paralysis which affected both legs.

The bullet, fired from a police service revolver, which injured the boy's spinal cord, was not recovered.

Debutantes to Be Presented At Court of St. James

By BETTY ALDEN

NOT CONTENT with being the cynosure of all eyes when they were guests of honor at the highest social court of their own country, Jean Martineau and Stellita Stapleton are looking forward to making their curtsies before their Britannic Majesties at the Court of St. James this spring . . . the supreme social attainment of all English-speaking people . . .

Jean, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Martineau of Tuxedo Park, New York, has a great many family affiliations in Boston, and spent several months last fall enjoying the sporting events on the North Shore . . . She and Barbara Cushing, the Harvey Cushings' debutante daughter, are the two girls for whom the Roosevelt boys gave a large dancing party at the White House during the Christmas holidays, and Stellita was one of the Washington buds who had the honor of being invited to the party . . .

Secret Bridal

Bachrach photo
STELLITA STAPLETON

SPRING AND ROMANCE go hand in hand, and today we have word of a surprise wedding of a Boston society girl who has been able to keep her marriage a secret for two weeks . . . Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester of Gloucester street is announcing today the marriage of her daughter, Lucy Sylvester, to William F. Fitzgerald, Jr., talented young author of Boston and Baltimore . . .

The wedding was performed two weeks ago last Saturday in Hartford, where the bridegroom was finishing a new novel . . . After a brief honeymoon the couple returned to Boston to reveal their secret and to make a short visit with Mrs. Sylvester . . .

JEAN MARTINEAU

This is the second marriage of the bridegroom. In 1922 he eloped with Eleanor Custis Whiting of Virginia, great-great-granddaughter of Nellie Custis, the sister-in-law of George Washington . . . Their romance began when they were students at the 47 Workshop of Professor Baker at Harvard . . .

Both Mr. Fitzgerald and his new bride are well known among the younger social set here . . . The bride is a graduate of Wellesley and holds a master's degree from Radcliffe . . . Her father, the late Joseph Sylvester, was a banker and manufacturer . . .

They will live in the ancestral home of the bridegroom's family, Lords Hall, in Effingham, N. H. . . . It was from this home that the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Robert Emlin Sumner of Park avenue, New York, was married . . . Mrs. Sumner, as Mary Barnett Fitzgerald, made her debut in 1924 and is a member of the Junior League . . .

"Gentlemen All" and "The Old Crowd" are two of the bridegroom's best known novels . . . the plot of the first is laid in the South, where he made his home after his first marriage, but in "The Old Crowd" the familiar scenes of Lords Hall form the background for the characters . . .

Fashion Shows Hold Spotlight

LIFE SEEMS TO BE JUST one fashion show after another . . . there were several on yesterday's social calendar and a smart assemblage of prominent women found their good resolutions to economize on their spring wardrobes being swept away as they viewed the gorgeous parade of the latest styles for milady . . .

Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman and Mrs. Henry Murray, Jr., enjoyed fashions by Hickson with their luncheon at the Ritz . . . they were accompanied by Bayard Warren.

Eleanor King and Mabel Bell sighed with yearning for one of those candy striped rice cloth party frocks like the one Barbara McKissock modelled so winsomely . . .

Mustard tweeds will perhaps adorn some of the best dressed North Shore socialites next summer . . . Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Jr., and Mrs. Paul Rust, Jr., were seen casting furtive glances at the lucious ensembles shown in this color . . . They lunched with a large party which included Margot Emerson and Charlotte Sherburne . . .

The luncheon was Betty Dwinnell's last social appearance here for several weeks as she is to join those fortunate people sunning themselves in Bermuda . . . sailing today . . .

Mrs. Gardiner Fiske and Mrs. Augustus Vogel left with the memory of the beautiful bridal party which completed the showing . . . Mrs. Harold D. Walker and Miss Eleanor Studley, Mrs. Royden Loring, Mrs. William Emerson Barrett and Mrs. Walter Carl were others in the entirely packed dining room . . .

Young Set Leaders to Attend Ball

ON FRIDAY EVENING after the Vincent Revue, the place to find all your social friends will be the Barclay Club where the Five Star Final Ball will be in full swing from 9 till 2 . . . Among the many who are planning to make this an evening to long remember are Betty Cram and Grace Nelson, who with Frederick Weld and Bowman Stratton will be among the dinner guests of Mrs. T. Denton Carmon before going on to the dance . . .

MARY HASTINGS

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Taylor will entertain at a small dinner party at their home in Dedham . . . their guests to include Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells, 2nd, and Gordon Smith . . .

Among the young social set who will make merry at table parties at the dance will be Virginia Tolman, Harriet Sturgis, Blair Lamont, Gordon McKissock, Malcolm T. Curtis, Jr., and Reginald Lamont who will be guests of Janet Marston . . .

Mrs. Horace Morison will entertain a group of friends in her party and Mary Hastings has invited about a dozen of the young set to join her at her table . . .

LONG WAITED Day Comes Tomorrow

ELEANOR CLAFLIN ELSIE RUSSELL LOUISE HARDING KATHERINE JOHNSON

Long weeks of rehearsal over at last! Almost time for the curtain to ring up for the first time on the "Vincent Ventures of 1935," produced by the exclusive Vincent Club of Boston. Opening performance is tomorrow afternoon at the Wilbur Theater. Here's a snappy dance team featuring Eleanor Claflin, Elise Russell, Louise Harding and Katherine Johnson. The Vincent show is given yearly to benefit the Vincent Hospital. Fair warning, though, you members of the "bald headed row"! There's no use waiting at the stage door for these "chorines." They just can't be "dated." (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Collars as Pass-Out Checks Planned

YOUNG SOCIETY AND college women will wear the new Dancers Club latest collar device at the Intercollegiate Ball to be held Friday evening at the Hotel Vendome.

The new "gadget" as it is called will be used instead of pass-out checks to prevent "gate crashing." The collar band made of metal and sealed in back can only be removed by breaking the seal.

Miss Janet Wyeth of Cambridge heads the committee for this annual affair in aid of the Cambridge Neighborhood House.

Many of Boston's society set who have made plans to attend the "Five Star Final" dance at the Barclay will later join forces at the intercollegiate ball.

Assisting as ushers are Warren T. Hastings, Carl Broadrick, Hollis Peacock, George Lovering, Arthur Blake, Donald Foss, John Grannis, Jr., T. Henry Merritt, Thomas Powers and Edwin Cutling.

Whist

ELIZABETH NORTON of Dorchester is directing a green whist and bridge in aid of St. Mary's Infant Asylum, to be held at the Hotel Somerset on Saturday afternoon.

Serving on the committee are Florence Hurley, Dorothy Doyle, Anna Norton, Mary Harrington, Christina Mason, Louise Ryan, Kathleen Daly, Evelyn Looney, Doris Reardon, Alice Sullivan, Mildred Sullivan, Alda McNally, Eleanor McNally, Sally Foley.

Also Catherine Donovan, Mary Manning, Genevieve McCrohan, Martha Norton, Miriam Maloney, Marguerite Donovan, Genevieve Steffy and Frances Wennerberg.

Stockholm, March 13 (AP)—The radical newspaper Folkets Dagblad said today that the engagement of Princess Ingrid of Sweden to Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark would be formally announced Friday.

Debutante Silhouettes

Number Twenty-one

THREE of this season's debutantes have the same last name, and the young lady whose profile appears above is one of the three.

Harvard students say she is the best dancing partner on the whole deb list. She lives in Hingham and on Beacon street, studied at Beaver Country Day and the May schools, is of medium height, slender and has medium brown hair. Do you know her?

Miss M. H.: Betty Alden will gladly send you the original drawing of your silhouette if you would care to have it.

* * *

Final Lecture

Miss Eunice Harriet Avery will give the last in her series of four dinner lectures at the Women's City Club this evening. Her subject will be "The State of the Nation."

Mrs. H. McKnight Franchot will preside

PIPE-SMOKING Champ Is Woman

London, March 13 (AP)—The Englishman's proud boast of pipe-smoking superiority was shattered today.

A mere woman outlasted 10 men in a pipe-smoking contest at Covent Garden. She kept 1-12 ounce of tobacco alight for 20 minutes.

Saturday Club

THE ANNUAL St. Patrick's Party of the Saturday Evening Club will be held at the Hotel Statler on Saturday.

The party committee includes Eve and Florence Carpenter, Dwight Duke, Fred Collins, Lourette Callahan, Ruth Cushman, John E. Curley, John Cullen, Charles W. Fairbanks, Elaine Dustin, Catherine Hess, Eleanor Hayes.

Ames-Lawson Bridal

Arlington Ceremony

AT A QUIET CEREMONY which took place at her mother's home in Arlington, this afternoon, Miss Barbara Lawson, became the bride of Mr. John K. Ames of Machias and Portland, Maine.

The bride wore a heavily embroidered gown of ivory mousseline de soie, over a full taffeta slip. A small lace cap and an arm bouquet of white gardenias completed the bridal costume, as Miss Lawson omitted the customary veil.

Mrs. Henry S. Miller of New York, as matron of honor, was the only bridal attendant. Mrs. Miller's dress was fashioned of aquamarine lace, which was contrasted by a dark blue velvet hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Lace was also chosen by the bride's mother, Mrs. Arthur A. Lawson. Her dress was of violet color and her taffeta hat was of the same shade.

The Lawson home was decorated with white calla lilies, snapdragons and white roses for the ceremony, which was read by the Rev. John Nicol Mark of the First Unitarian Church in Arlington. Mr. Arthur J. Lawson, brother of the bride, was Mr. Ames best man.

Though attendance at the ceremony was limited to members of the two families, a large reception followed. Ushers at the reception were: Harrie Hazzard Sherman, Jr., of New York, Dr. Olin Sewell Pettingill, Jr., of Middleton, Irving Durfee Humphrey, Jr., of Tiverton, R. I., and Harold M. Ridlon of Worcester and Saco, Me.

Mrs. Ames is a graduate of the Cambridge-Haskell school and the Child Walker School of Art. Mr. Ames, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred K. Ames of Machias, Me., was graduated from the Moses Brown school at Providence, R. I., and attended Bowdoin and the University of Pennsylvania.

After their wedding trip Mr. Ames and his bride will make their home near Two Lights, Cape Elizabeth, Me.

Recital

Dr. Bancroft Beatley, president of Simmons College, and Mrs. Beatley, head the list of sponsors for the two-piano recital which will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings at the Junior League Ballroom by Helen Coates and Jean Whittington.

Lindy SHOWED BEAUTIFUL Loyalty

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

LOYALTY is a word often bandied about in admonitions as to the relation between master and man, mistress and maid.

But ought not such loyalty to be more than a one-way street? Should it not be an obligation TO servants, as well as FROM them?

The Lindberghs and the Morrows think so. Now that the tumult and the shouting of the Hauptmann trial have died, one light still glows in that black and tragic murk—the resolute, generous refusal of a murdered baby's parents and grandparents to believe the whisper of insinuation and the voice of scandal raised against members of their own households.

To protect four humble men and women—two of them dead—to show his unshaken trust in Oliver and Elsie Whateley, in Betty Gow and Violet Sharpe—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh endured the long drawn-out agony of the trial in Flemington Court House.

SOUGHT JUSTICE

He, who would prefer to evade the limelight so relentlessly following him, forced himself to remain day after day in its whitest, hottest beam in order to make sure that no wrong was done to present and former servants in his home.

That was the one reason, it is said, why he forced himself to enter the courtroom and sit almost cheek by jowl with Hauptmann, instead of giving his testimony and leaving the place forever, as he originally had planned and hoped.

When Betty Gow, his lost little son's nurse, and Mrs. Whateley, whom the dead baby had called "Elsie," were on the stand, they could find encouragement in the Colonel's quiet, confident glance and his slight but pleasant smile.

When the defense was hinting dark things about the dead butler, Oliver Whateley, on the night of the kidnaping, it was his former employe who gave him an alibi by reminding the prosecution in a whisper that Whateley served the dinner and so was under his master's eye.

Again, when the defense's innuendoes reached downright accusation of Violet Sharpe, the maid committing suicide in Englewood, it was her grief-stricken employer, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, who steeled her elf to walk to the witness stand and defend the name of a dead girl.

WILENTZ'S PRAISE

As Attorney General David Wilentz said in his summation:

"It just indicates the type of people that they are, unwilling to charge against any living soul or any dead soul any improper act that is not properly proven."

What a refreshing contrast to the behavior of many employers of servants, who leap to the conclusions about the behavior of maid or man!

How often police have been called in to search the belongings of a helpless cook or housewerker, because Madame has missed some bit of jewelry—only to find, after all her rumpus and slanderous accusations, that she herself has mislaid her brooch or ring!

To accuse a domestic servant, without excellent evidence, is so unchivalrous a business! It is hitting someone weaker, who cannot strike back—who has no family, no position in the community, no legal defense fund with which to retaliate.

The quick, unjust suspicion, the hot-tempered human instinct to put the blame on someone has wrecked much irreparable injustice, especially in the lives of decent servant girls.

A fine, old-fashioned ideal is "to be true to the salt." But those who sit above it might remember that they owe a certain faith to their retainers, as well as the other way around.

They are the powerful ones—and there still exists such a thing as "noblesse oblige."

Lingerie Highlights

There is little to be said about lingerie in general for the coming season.

Costume slips, which are by far a woman's most important lingerie item, have been so perfected that there is scarcely any more that need be done with them. They are cut to fit well, and when that is done, one asks for little more.

If you go in for lace, you'll find many very beautiful models with laces that are hand run for a surprisingly little sum. If you cling to tailored slips you'll find plenty of them.

It would seem that panties are not the popular garment they once were.

They are still as cute and young as ever, but so many women are buying girdles which have a panti ruffle attached that the wearing of still another panti is entirely unnecessary.

BRIDGE

Judicious False Carding

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

There are more ways of killing a cat . . . so runs this old proverb.

This homely bit of wisdom is well known to all expert bridge players.

If a hand cannot be made against good defense, the expert merely assists the opponents to put up a bad defense.

The most effective device to this end consists of judicious false-carding.

A remarkable example of the use of this weapon, together with some exceedingly close reasoning, was displayed by Alfred Sheinwold in a team-of-four contest at the Grand National Tournament held a month ago.

West, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♡
Pass	1♠ (1)	Pass	4♡ (2)
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Far too optimistic. Two hearts would be a much better bid.

(2) After partner's pass his double raise is not game forcing. South nevertheless bids the game expecting some play for it.

West opened the King of spades and Mr. Sheinwold made a rapid survey of the dummy. Two spades and one club loser were inevitable.

There might be some difficulty in picking up the Queen of trumps, but far more important was the necessity of running three diamonds without loss.

This would be possible if East held both honors. But declarer saw a way to accomplish the same end, even if the honors were split.

East played the deuce of spades at Trick 1, and declarer threw the nine. This was the beginning of a false-carding campaign, the object of which was to induce West to shift to the diamond suit.

West looked at the nine of spades and concluded declarer had a doubleton spade.

In this case it was imperative to secure declarer's minor suit losers before he could obtain a discard on the Queen of spades.

West accordingly shifted to a low diamond. Dummy played low, East put up the Queen, and declarer won with the Ace—a second false-card.

The third false-card was not long in following.

The ten of spades was led to confirm West's impression that declarer held a doubleton. West won with the Ace and led another diamond, convinced his partner held the King.

One of declarer's problems had been solved. West had been induced to lead diamonds twice. The next problem was that of picking up the trump Queen.

West had already played the Ace and King of spades. The play of the diamond suit had marked him with the Jack.

West was an expert player. He would not have shifted to the diamond suit unless a club lead had appeared more dangerous.

He could not hold the Ace of clubs since in that event he would have had the requirements for an original bid.

Holding only low clubs he would probably have led through dummy's King at Trick 2. The inevitable conclusion was that he held the Queen of clubs.

For this reason declarer placed the Queen of hearts in the East hand since if West had started with the Ace-King of spades, the Queen of hearts, the Jack of diamonds and the Queen of clubs, he would in all probability have made an original bid or an overcall of South's heart bid.

A heart was led to the Ace and a small one led back. East played low and declarer finessed.

Thus a very difficult contract was made.

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

CROCHETED GLOVES
PATTERN 778

That dainty bit of crochet, the lacy glove is to be all the rage this Spring and Summer, according to the fashion forecast.

If you envied someone their dainty beauty last summer, you should quickly get started on your pair now and be all ready to show them off at Easter time.

This pair is especially lovely, the simplicity of its design making the work progress rapidly, as well as giving them smartness. The cuff is especially attractive because of the dainty crocheted roses that stud it. Incidentally, that cuff design would make a delightful collar.

Pattern 778 comes to you with complete directions for making the gloves in a small, medium and large size; illustrations of the gloves as shown and of all stitches used, as well as material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

"SALADA" TEA

Four-in-One

By Annice Brink

TO CHANGE around three separate pieces and make a dozen different ensembles is simple—but to take one dress and change it into four with a few quick flourishes smacks a little of magic. So it is with frock above. To be perfectly truthful, it's almost impossible to explain; yet easy as pie to do. It is a print-and-plain combination built on the lining principle. The back bodice section unbuttons at the left shoulder and swings around to the front (like the upper half of a Dutch door) and fastens again at the left shoulder. Since the section is lined with plain crepe, and there is a matching plain crepe back underneath it, you have the first chameleon change, illustrated at the lower right. The shirt also swings around, to show one plain or one printed side. The sleeves remain the same throughout, in the charming wavy print. There is a flowery print, if you prefer it. And to think you get practically four dresses for around ten dollars! From a Boston shop; for information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tilt Hats

There are a few women in this world who have features perfect enough to allow them to wear their hats straight on the head. Lucky ladies, for this is by far the best way in the world to attain chic. But if you do not measure up to the specifications one needs to enable to wear a hat at this sharp angle, then stick to the good old method of tilting. It is soft and easy and far more flattering to the face than the straight line . . . and most of us certainly need to be flattered.

When the hat is tilted, dress your hair as becomingly as possible on the side that is exposed. The new fashion for braids looks charming at the side of a hat. Curls piled at the side is also a smart way of doing the hair.

FASHION FLASHES

A bustle on a black taffeta dinner dress, a three-quarter gabardine flared coat with velvet collar and buttons, a black point d'esprit evening frock with bow tied under the chin—are some of the quaint ideas cropping out.

LILLIAN VETOES HUGH'S PLAN FOR AVIS

(CHAPTER 29)

THERE WAS such delicious Quixotism in Hugh's proposal to get his car and drive Mrs. Arlen and Avis to the city, as soon as they could get ready, that my heart warmed to his chivalry.

Lillian's little outburst had convinced him the Avis Arlen's feeling toward me was something stronger, more dangerous, than mere dislike, and he had reacted instantaneously to the fear of harm coming to me.

He had forgotten the impulse toward championship of Avis which he had shown unmistakably while Lillian, with palpable if subconscious hostility, was questioning the girl concerning the happenings on the balcony. The first hint of danger to me had put everything else out of his mind.

It was a tribute heady enough to intoxicate any woman, and I possess a normal amount of feminine vanity. But mingled with my gratification was a distinct sense of guilt, which dampened my spirits materially.

AN EMBARRASSING MOMENT

Lillian, however, put me too opportunity to indulge either my vanity or my conscience. She answered his query with an incredulous little laugh that labeled his proposal as the fantastic thing, it really was.

"My dear Hugh," she said. "Exercise just one cell of that massive brain of yours, and you'll see how utterly impossible your proposition is. It might not be a difficult task to shanghai the fair Avis, especially if you were driving the car"—again her impish smile flashed out—"but consider hauling a woman of Mrs. Arlen's age and dignity out of her bed at this hour of the night and telling her that she and her daughter were to be deported, or words to that effect, it simply—"

Hugh put up a swiftly protesting hand, while his cheeks reddened, a rare thing indeed with him. His embarrassment and chagrin must be something unusual, I mentally commented, thus to betray themselves.

"Please!" he begged. "Don't rub it in. I know how preposterous that must have sounded. I saw it even before you spoke. But the thought of danger to—to either of you—at the hands of that girl or anybody else, made me temporarily irresponsible, I think. I cannot explain by any other hypothesis my voicing so insane a proposal."

I wondered if Lillian had noticed, as I had, the hesitancy before the words "either of you." I decided that she had when I saw the corners of her lips quirk into a smile. But her voice was carefully conventional when she answered his impassioned apology.

"Do not think of it again," she said. "You only put into words what I was wishing could be done. Perhaps we are psychically tuned, or whatever the jargon is, and you reflect my sub-conscious. How's that for a theory? No, you needn't answer. We'd better go back to our muttons, in the good old English phrase, and listen to what you have to tell us about Lee Chow."

Hugh's eyes were suddenly shadowed and he looked at her appealingly.

"Do you think we ought to discuss that here?" he asked. "Not that I think we shall have any more eavesdroppers on the balcony, but—"

"One never knows." Lillian struck in "and now that we know people are so vitally interested in the subject, it might be as well to postpone this story until we are by ourselves. Tomorrow, for instance; most of the guests are departing then I can promise you"—she lowered her voice almost to a whisper—"that Marion will be on hand whenever you need her. Just give me 24 hours' notice and I'll have her here."

"That being the case—" Hugh rose and bowed ceremoniously to both of us—"I think I will go back to Lee Chow for a while."

"Let us know if anything new develops," Lillian said carelessly, and I wondered at her somewhat cavalier manner of speaking. But when he had left the room she threw her arms above her head and executed a little dance step.

"I thought he never would go," she said flippantly. "I've been dying to have you tell me how clever I was in spiking the guns Avis had trained upon Hugh."

ANNOUNCING New Arrival IN FAMILY

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are expecting a "newcomer" in our home and I have been asked by persons who have served us professionally for some years to please let them know when the baby arrives.

Should I send them (dentist, my former employer, and so forth) one of my announcements, or what would you suggest? I wish to do the right thing, also the proper thing, and feel that you are the best source of information. Reader.

Since apparently you are planning to send announcements, it would be quite appropriate and correct for you to send one of these to each of these people who have been so kind and friendly in their attitude.

(And may I add my good wishes to you, dear lady, for this wondrous event "trailing clouds of glory"?)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am supposed to take the president's chair next week if she happens to go away. It is a woman's institute meeting, and we have invited three of four other institutes to our meeting and also a speaker, whom nearly all the ladies know.

I would like you to tell me just what to say when it comes time to announce the speaker and also what to say when she is finished. J.

Since nearly all the members know the speaker, you may make the briefest of introductions, and an especially gracious one:

"Members of the Women's Institute . . . I have special pleasure today in announcing our speaker, Mrs. Kermit Piercy. I say 'announcing' for our good friend Mrs. Piercy does not need an introduction to this group.

"We are greeting her as an old friend, a very devoted friend of The Institute, a loyal and faithful worker for its ideals. It's a great privilege to have her here with us at this meeting, and a deep pleasure . . . Mrs. Piercy."

(The dots indicate when you turn directly to the speaker to indicate that it is the time for her to begin her address.)

When the speaker has finished her address, you might say something like this:

"Thank you, Mrs. Piercy, in behalf of our guest-Institutes and our own Institute. You must have seen, as I did the enthusiastic expression of friendliness and deep interest in everything you said. It was a splendid talk, and we thank you with all our heart."

You might, if you wish, after this, suggest that special compliment to the speaker:

"Ladies, I suggest that we give Mrs. Piercy a rising vote of thanks and appreciation."

YOUR WASHING MACHINE IS FOUR YEARS OLD... YET YOUR CLOTHES ALWAYS COME OUT SO SNOWY
I'VE ALWAYS BEEN ABLE TO GET SNOW-WHITE WASHES FROM MY MACHINE
MY WASHER IS BRAND NEW... YET I CAN'T SEEM TO GET THE CLOTHES SNOWY
THE AGE OF THE WASHER HAS LITTLE TO DO WITH THE WHITENESS OF THE WASH. IT'S THE SUDS THAT COUNT. TRY RINSO AND SEE THE DIFFERENCE
FOLLOWING MONDAY
WHAT'S ALL THE SMILES? DID SOMEONE LEAVE YOU A MILLION DOLLARS?
OH, JIM, I'M SO HAPPY! LOOK! I USED A NEW KIND OF SOAP TODAY... RINSO... AND THE WASH TURNED OUT SO SNOWY THAT'S GREAT!
IT WASN'T THE FAULT OF THE WASHER THAT MY CLOTHES LOOKED DINGY. IT WAS THE FLAT SUDS, BUT WITH RINSO I'LL NEVER HAVE TO WORRY AGAIN!
NEXT DAY
WHITEST WASH EVER? I TOLD YOU SO! AND RINSO IS ECONOMICAL, IT GOES SO FAR TRY IT FOR EASY DISHWASHING

"Gives the richest suds I ever Saw," says Mrs. Gladys Graham of E. Milton

"I SEE that Rinso has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. That's no surprise to me! I'm sure Rinso would pass every test to which it was subjected—it's such an efficient, economical soap. It gives the richest, longest-lasting suds I ever saw—and such safe suds! My clothes come 4 or 5 shades whiter when I use Rinso—and colored clothes come brighter, too. I find also that dishwashing is much quicker and easier with Rinso."

MRS. GLADYS GRAHAM
4 Rowe St., East Milton, Mass.

Rinso is marvelous for tub washing, too. Just soak everything in those thick suds—let the dirt float out by itself—rinse—and hang out the whitest wash ever. Clothes last 2 or 3 times longer washed this safe way. Gives creamy suds—even in hard water. Recommended by makers of 34 famous washers. Safe for your finest cottons and linens—white or colors. ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Map Your Course and Steer It Straight

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I RECEIVE so many letters from people who, after telling me their problem, really solve it themselves.

First, they ask me whether I don't think they have done the right thing, and then they finish by saying they don't think they can keep to their decision.

I am anxious to help these people do the thing that they know is right, because it means so much unhappiness and sorrow when they waver—making it one of themselves, oftentimes, in consequence. Having once resolved on the right course, do not turn back—no matter what the temptation may be.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

She's a pippin, all right, though she uses more make-up than a red Indian. All the men are wild about her and, fool that I am, I thought to get ahead of them by lending her money. Now it seems that she has tried to borrow from every man in the office, and the only ones who have come across are myself and an old dodo over 60.

The other guys don't lend, but take her out to dinner and shows, and so get some good out of their money. Well, seeing that she didn't like me any better than anybody else, I tried to get some of my money back, but she just smiled sweetly and said she didn't have it.

Would I be justified in trying to get the money back through a collector? She's evidently a pretty hard-boiled proposition.

SIMPLE SIMON.

If this girl had only made some explanation of her failure to pay, besides smiling and saying she didn't have the money, I'd have some sympathy with her. But such light-minded tactics as she employs do not make a favorable impression on me.

I think you would be justified in trying to collect the money in a business-like manner.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We met last summer and grew to like each other very much. He says asked me and my girl friend to go motoring with him, and we had wonderful times swimming and getting our supper afterwards. He never tried to kiss me, but used to put his arm around me sometimes.

Then we all got back to school, and he changed completely, barely speaking when necessary. I sent him a Christmas card, and when he left town he sent me a post.

Do you think I should call him up and demand an explanation of his coolness? I've cared for him for six months, and simply must do something—anything except give him up.

PUZZLED.

Sometimes boys in high school act like this one. They're devoted to girls outside of school, and then hardly speak to them when they meet in classrooms or corridors. Just natural shyness, this, coupled with a fear of being gawked, and also because they have not acquired the technique of handling situations gracefully.

But whatever you do, my dear, I hope you will not demand an explanation for his coolness. That would be worse tactics than the coolness with which he treats you. Just be natural. Invite him to the house if you like, but pass up the explanations.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a junior in high school and 18 years of age, but she is a senior in the same school and 19. I am beginning to like her very much—but she's a year older than I am. Do you think people will talk about her being older?

JUNIOR.

No, I don't believe people will talk about the year's difference in your ages. Did you happen to see the movie called "Disraeli?" England's first Jewish premier was considerably younger than his wife.

A Visit to the Park . . . Oh, See the Monkey!

Beauty is so much a part of Nell Brinkley's mind and heart, that she even makes the little monkey in this picture almost pretty. She gives it long tapering fingers of genius, delicate arms, a straight up-and-down profile which no monkey ever had. It took millions of years after the monkey was finished to produce that profile in human beings.

Also, you will notice, Nell Brinkley puts her monkey in a cage made of threads of silk. No harsh wire. An artist is always an artist.

These young ladies studying "Evolution" are trying to decide for themselves the truth or falsity of the theory that human beings used to be monkeys, or some animal like the monkey.

It is an interesting, harmless speculation. We know that our ancestors once had arms that hung down to their knees, enormous teeth like those of a mastiff, low foreheads, "prognathous" jaws projecting forward. We know that they ate each other, making drinking bowls of the tops of each other's skulls. If we have descended from those low men of the cave days and earlier, we may go even farther back.

What ought to interest these young women more than the monkey, and probably DOES, is their own duty, which is to marry, and carry the human race farther, onward and upward, by adding to it good and beautiful children. These eight lovely girls ought to be the mothers of forty-eight lovely children. That is THEIR job. Again I ask you, "Why Don't YOU Get Married?"

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Fashion Calls for Lace

USE IT ON BLOUSES, DRESSES, LINGERIE

LACE is back again—and what luck!

Nothing in a woman's whole wardrobe gives as flattering, feminine a touch as this romantic bit of decoration.

Fashion has multiplied tenfold the kinds of lace and colors you can have, and the clever ways you can use it this spring. Not only to give glamour to new clothes, but to dress up last year's left-overs. For instance, the colored cotton lace yoke on the blouse in our sketch. Sweet and gracious, isn't it? And doubly economical when you use the odds and ends for trimming your lingerie! Another fashion pointer—try running a shirred strip of Val lace, as pictured, down the outside of a sleeve, from neck to elbow. Nice!

To set Val edging into a sleeve, gather the lower edge of lace to the fulness you like. Insert it between the two parts of the sleeve. Then, as shown with needle and thread at the top of our sketch, sew the gathered lace to one side of the sleeve opening; the second needle shows the other side of sleeve being sewn over the lace.

To top a blouse with a yoke of matching cotton lace, put the right sides of the material together, with edges even, then whip with fairly loose stitches, so as not to pucker the material.

Once you get the lace habit you'll loosen up marks of your smart dressmakers' trims outstrippings with it. One of Paris' dashing linens with it, and makes it into skirts and jackets or jersey dresses. You'll like lace on your housewold linens, too.

Calavos Have High Nutritive Oil

By MARTHA LEE
From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

A NEW food treat is in store for us! The calavo.

This is a development of the avocado or alligator pear which was formerly grown only in Florida but Canada.

The variety in quality and kind not withstand shipment, but after years of testing and experiments it has been found that it can be grown successfully in California.

The calavo is the smartest food to serve for salads, fruit cocktails. It is rich and has the best flavor when chilled, softened. When ripe enough to be used the flesh should yield easily to the pressure of the hand.

To serve as a salad on the half-shell, cut the calavo into halves, remove the large seeds, arrange each half on a salad plate and garnish with lettuce leaves.

Some people prefer lemon juice and salt in place of the salad dressing. If a dressing is used it should be thin and sharp, for the fruit is rich enough in itself and heavy, oily dressing mars its flavor.

It can be combined with a tart fruit as orange or grapefruit sections. In preparing this salad peel the calavo, cut into slices about the size of the fruit segments and arrange alternate slices of calavo and fruit on the salad plate. This may be served without dressing or with a tart French dressing.

Combine with vegetables, as cooked green beans, carrots and cauliflower, to make an unusual luncheon dish.

Mashed and seasoned with lemon juice and salt, the meat of the calavo makes a new sandwich spread for crisp toast. Garnish with slices of ripe olives and serve for luncheon or afternoon tea.

Ruffly Home Frock

By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9319

The home person who wants to look fresh and dainty all the time will enjoy including this frock in her supply of house dresses—it is simple and dainty, new in design, and extremely easy to sew.

The kimono type sleeves are simply seamed across the shoulders for nicer shape, and a perky little ruffle is stitched in with smoothness.

GOOD BUSINESS

When Mrs. S, who keeps roomers, went to insert a newspaper ad to fill two vacant rooms, a helpful clerk suggested—

"List your telephone number. Some people like to ask questions before they go looking. Besides, most men want to be sure of a telephone address."

That's why Mrs. S ordered her telephone at once.

"Even if it only helps hold the roomers I have now, it sounds like good business. It doesn't cost much more and I can use it myself to do errands and to talk to my friends once in a while."

How about you?

Even in a one-room apartment, the telephone can serve you well and faithfully. See your local telephone business office for details. New England Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Question: I am 48 years of age and I notice criss-cross lines appearing on my neck. I have tried massage with cold cream, but without any success. My face is free of wrinkles and I naturally am anxious to keep my throat young looking as long as possible. Please help me.

MRS. EVELYN M.

Dorchester.

Answer. After the age of 45 the feminine neck is hard on self-destruction. No matter whether it has been fat, thin or medium, it is likely to take "up and down gullies." Cold cream is not suitable for any form of massage, as it is too thin and slippery. One of the best means of strengthening neck fibers is to slap on a small towel which has been wrung out of ice cold water. Cover it with a dry one. Blood streams are set working and then the flesh gets steaming hot. Then apply another ice blanketing. Do this at night. In the morning apply cold water with a large sponge and apply with hands.

"HOUSEWORK IS FUN"

says Gloria Adams after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Housewife tells how this famous medicine gave her new strength

"I used to be all run down and tired out," writes Gloria Adams. "I was nervous . . . I was weak and tired. I did not do my housework without resting every few minutes.

"One day a friend of mine told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I started taking it. In a few days my strength began to come back, my color improved and I was able to sleep nights.

"I have now been taking the Vegetable Compound regularly for some time and I feel full of pep again. Housework seems to me it does not tire me. I advise all women who are weak, run down and nervous to try this wonderful medicine."

PEPPY HOUSEWIVES

Thousands of housewives are now strong and full of pep because they have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before they tried this famous medicine, however, they were weak, rundown and tired. Many of them were cross to their husbands. Women who are all tired out just can't help being cross.

If you are tired out . . . if you are cross to your husband, try this famous old medicine . . . Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its tonic action should strengthen you, calm your quivering nerves and give you the pep that you need to carry on with a smile.

CHECK YOUR FAULTS

Ask your family or friends whether or not you show any of these symptoms.

Are you cross? . . . .
Are you nervous? . . . .
Are you run-down? . . . .

Do you ever feel faint? . . .
Are you ever dizzy? . . . .
Are you "all in"? . . .

If you have one or more of these symptoms and they are due to a nervous or run-down condition, you should read the rest of this advertisement . . . it contains advice which will be helpful to you. If you feel that any of these symptoms are caused by a serious ailment or disease, you should immediately consult your physician.

CHECK YOUR FAULTS

Read over the questions listed in the center of this advertisement. If you have to say yes to one or more of them, you should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its tonic action will help you, no doubt, just what you need to give you renewed strength and energy.

LABOR FOR NRA, SAYS RICHBERG

Senate Hears Chief

By International News Service

Washington, March 13—Both industry and organized labor insist upon an extension of NRA, the Senate Finance Committee was told today by Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council, as he resumed testimony on the question of extending the recovery act past June 16.

He cited prices of $41.96 in 1933 as against $47.50 per ton at present.

"If that is the sort of exaggeration of trifles we are faced with, it does not indicate mature judgment of facts, Richberg observed.

FURORE Delays Home RAZING

WORK PUT OFF UNTIL SUMMER

The actual work of demolishing property in the old Harbor section of South Boston, taken by the government under the federal housing plan, may not start until late in the summer.

When it was announced that 277 parcels of land in that area had been condemned under the five million dollar government grant, it was thought that work could be started early in the spring.

Until the claims and demurrers that have sprung up on every side are settled however, work cannot be started.

To Separate Claims

John T. Noonan, special United States attorney, declared today that all demurrers and claims filed by the property owners will be separated.

Those making claims on the price of land will be contacted by government appraisers. The court will then receive from the appraiser a report on the amount asked, and if satisfactory, will allow it.

In the event that the amount asked is excessive, in the opinion of the court, the price will be left to a jury to decide. The United-Carr Fastener Corporation, petitioning dismissal of the federal proceedings, states the alternative is payment of $500,000 or such amount as a jury may decide for its property.

Martin Kerrigan of 46 Newman street and Catherine J. McMorrow owners of the properties at 278 and 280 Dorchester street, filed petitions today that the value of their property be assessed by a jury.

Many Complaints

This, it was pointed out, will be the answer to all cases of objectors.

All demurrers, on points of law will be heard by the court at the same time, to facilitate proceedings, Noonan announced.

The actual work of demolition will be carried on under supervision of PWA officials in Washington.

Many land-owners are protesting because some tenants consider property already owned by the government, and are refusing to pay their rent.

Further complaint is made that many old residents already are moving to other parts of the city, breaking up old ties of neighborliness and hampering their children, who must transfer to new schools.

All except eight owners have been served with notices, and the United States marshal's office now is trying to contact them.

COLT FIREARM Workers Strike

Hartford, Conn., March 13 (AP)—Approximately 3000 employes of the Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company went on strike today and immediately established headquarters at the Labor Temple here.

The strike was called today by the joint shop committee, and announcement was made by Francis P. Fenton of Boston, New England representative of the American Federation of Labor.

The dispute, in progress for [illegible] months, was reviewed twice by the New England Regional Labor Board and a similar number of times by the National Labor Board.

FARM DEBT Law Ruled Legal

Kansas City, March 13 (AP)—Judge Merrill S. Otis of the United States district court today upheld constitutionality of the Frazier-Lemke amendment to the federal bankruptcy act providing a five-year moratorium on farm debts.

While expressing an opinion the act is "unwise in many of its provisions and almost incomprehensible in others," Judge Otis held Congress had power to legislate to accomplish the results intended.

Posed as "Lady Peel," Woman Tells Court

By International News Service

London, March 13—The charge that Sir Robert Peel, late husband of Beatrice Lillie, lived with another woman for five years before his death in 1934 was aired in King's Bench court today.

Mrs. Doris Draper, who told the court she posed for half a decade as "Lady Peel" whose "feet" was entertaining capacity audiences in England and the United States, used a West End dressmaker in an effort to recover two ermine coats worth $1500, deposited as security on a debt.

Mrs. Draper declared the debt was contracted by Sir Robert, now dead.

The attorney said Sir Robert had an income of $20,000 a year and always insisted Mrs. Draper dress in a manner befitting her station as his companion and chatelaine of his ancestral estate.

Sir Robert and Miss Lillie were married in 1920, five years before he succeeded his father to the baronetcy created in 1800. They had one son.

OLD AGE Pension Plan PRESENTED

By International News Service

Washington, March 13—Growing controversy in Congress over old-age pensions today culminated in a movement to separate the issue from all other economic security proposals.

A House petition for a Democratic caucus to consider the question was inaugurated by Mrs. Isabella Greenway (D.), of Arizona. It was signed by 25 members, thus making a caucus call mandatory.

In leading the movement, Mrs. Greenway, a close friend of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, took issue with the economic security program presented by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins for the administration.

An "old age pensions bloc" already is seeking to expand the administration's proposal for a $15 grant to states, so pensions of $30 a month can be paid.

They were seeking a compromise with the $200-a-month plan of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, the California physician, who claims millions of backers.

AUSTEN LAKE on Foggy Future Worrying Braves' Pilot

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13.

ANYONE WHO HAS STUDIED Bill McKechnie as a personality-specimen during his five terms as Braves manager, must be struck with the swift change in his manner this spring.

Austen Lake

In other years, Bill has strutted on his coaching lines as a boss rooster rules a hen roost. He has leaned on the parapet of his dugout with an air of calm command. He has issued his orders with parental finality, crisp, courteous, smiling, affable.

But now something is eating at Bill's innards. His luster is dulled. There is a certain pinched grayness in his features and a flat finality in his voice.

I am not imagining this. Over the years I have measured McKechnie as well as any observer of his external habits could.

* * *

Diplomatic Denial

THE ANSWER, OF COURSE, is that McKechnie is brooding over his own foggy future and, through no fault of his own, the abrupt smash that has pulled down his enthusiasm and ideals about his ears like spilled groceries.

Though Bill's light still stands at the head of the Braves' table, the warmth of its former glow has dimmed to a feeble flicker.

I said today, "Bill, you are grinding away inside about this situation."

And he denied, as he would, with a finely faked surprise and asked, "Why, what situation?"

* * *

Medley of Doubts

WHY, BILL, THE SITUATION in which you find yourself both subordinate and boss of the game's greatest personality, Babe Ruth.

A situation in which, after years of moulding mediocre and middling material beyond its abilities, you are called on to school Ruth, as an apprentice to take over your own job.

A situation, Bill, in which you must use the dry husk of baseball's old strong man for the sake of crowd receipts and at the risk of losing games.

This amounts to open treason against the public's-playmate and National chum. But I have done my share of mammy-singing for Babe in his junior time, and though I do not wish now to snowball his gathering age, I have doubts, which I must release to make room for more doubts.

I wonder whether Babe's sand-piper pegs, which have given his keg-chest and watermelon stomach a faithful ride, can support him much longer in the wide acreage at Braves Field before his tendons snap like frayed garters.

I wonder whether a stiffening spine and slowing gait will not make him kick in as many runs as he knocks in, and if so, whether the fans who shower him with glory now will not stir impatiently and, maybe, commit the cardinal sin of hooting a few hollow hoots.

* * *

A Costly Cripple

IN THE FIRST EXHIBITION GAME at Tampa, Babe swung at and missed a Cincinnati pitch. The jerk stretched a tendon in his right arm, and for the rest of the afternoon he rubbed and waved the damaged part, afterward taking heat applications at the hands of Trainer Jimmy Neary.

Babe would make an expensive cripple, considering the large investment the Braves have in his person. And I question that the fans would come out for the mere pleasure of seeing the club which carries his colors if Babe were cuddling a sprain or a muscle-tear in the Neary nursery.

* * *

I SUSPECT, TOO, WHEN HIS TERM of management matures next year, that he will do as all elderly playing managers have done before him, i. e., retire to the murky gloom of his dugout cave or rest his shins on the coaching lines.

And that, too, may not be a satisfying spectacle to folk who crave to see him flail the ball for long rides into the distant bleachers.

In which case the Braves' golden goose, which was to lay daily riches, may turn into a white elephant.

I don't think many folk attend games to see a manager manage. If they did, they would have crowded Braves Field last season to watch McKechnie agitate a set of brains that are reckoned as No. 1 in sound baseball circles.

I question, too, whether the Braves can afford to keep their winter promise to retire Bill to a comfortable inner-office job at an equivalent or better salary than he now receives.

Their large commitment to Babe, plus indemnity to Bill, plus wages to Judge Fuchs, is apt to use up the golden eggs as fast as the goose can lay them.

So that, very roughly, Bill, covers the "situation" which is eating secretly at your innards and explains the pinched grayness of your features, not to mention the flat quality of your voice.

TURNING THE BLUES TO CRIMSON ICE HUE

Tragedy Follows Danno's Victory Over Dusek

LEO ECKER ASHTON EMERSON

Leo Ecker, Harvard sophomore from Belmont, makes a headlong dive over Goalie Ashton Emerson of the Crimson varsity, who lies prone on the ice. "If you can't drive in the rubber, well then you can dive in with it," Leo states.

FAN KILLED IN FALL

Albany, March 13—Tragedy choked the cheers of 6000 wrestling fans in their throats here as Dan O'Mahoney was taking his bows for whipping Joe Dusek into submission.

James L. Cleveland, 65-year-old Gloversville man, who had come 60 miles to see the Irish champion in action, died making a six-foot jump, from a balcony to raised bleacher seats.

As Danno was waving triumphant paws to the cheering crowd, most of the fans rushed toward the ringside for a closeup. Cleveland was just as anxious. But he tried a shortcut to the ring.

Missing his footing the elderly man plunged 25 feet to the floor of the 10th Infantry Armory, where the bouts were staged. He died in two hours at Albany Hospital.

Shocked spectators melted away and the carnival of joy at O'Mahoney's triumph was over in a flash.

The Irishman had used his famed whip twice in the final session to flail Dusek into such a state that he had to be carried out.

With but one more fall needed for the victory, Danno stood ready when Dusek's trainer announced his man had to default.

The Irish whips had strained Joe's neck and back so badly he couldn't make it, the trainer said.

Dusek's brother, Emil, had a bad night, too, losing to Tom Alley on a referee's decision in the 45-minute semi-final.

The crowd at the Armory was capacity. More than 2000 fans were turned away.

DIZZY DEAN BABE RUTH

The end of hostilities is signalized by this scene, as Ruth and Dean greeted each other cordially at Tampa, Fla. Dean had been quoted as saying that Babe should have stayed in the American League. "Glad to see you Babe," chirped Dizzy. "O. K. son," replied Ruth.

CRIMSON Yale in 3rd ICE TILT

By Walter Kiley

There is little choice between Harvard and Yale as the rival hockey teams battle in the third and deciding game of their annual series on Boston Garden ice tonight.

Yale pulled out the opener in Boston in an overtime 3-2 victory.

The Crimson came back a week later to launch a blasting attack, rolling up four goals and evening the series with a 4-L decision.

The quadrangular league title—Dartmouth and Princeton are the other members—as well as the intercollegiate championship hang in the balance.

Crimson supporters see in the New Haven victory an omen that Coach Joe Stubbs has finally found a winning combination. They feel that Harvard was the victim of an inferiority complex in the opener and now having rid itself will clean up the Eli in short order.

The history of the series is replete with overtime final games.

BRUINS TRIUMPH OVER AMERICANS

By Bill Grimes

Tired and worn from the games in Toronto and Detroit, the Bruins stumbled through to a 4-1 victory over the Americans at the Garden.

The win pushed the Patricians 2½ games out in front of the Chicago Blackhawks, thereby making it necessary for the Windy City outfit to come through with four straight wins to cop the title, providing the Bruins take one of their three remaining games.

But for the fact that they had not recovered from the effects of the Maple Leaf and Red Wing conflicts, the Bruins would have filled the Amerks' nets with rubber. . . . I hope they never miss as many scoring opportunities as they did last night.

Capt. Nels Stewart and Jack Beattie bagged the scoring honors for the Bruins, each counting twice . . . Incidentally, Stewart picked up another point by figuring in on the first Jack Beattie goal . . . And Eddie Shore did not do so badly by himself, assisting on both of the Stewart goals.

Happy Emms, who was mowed down by Buz Boll in Toronto, wore a helmet and, between us, he is not looking so well . . . Eddie Jeremiah, the former Dartmouth star, who turned pro to join the Americans and was passed along to New Haven, Cubs and Philadelphia, has caught on with Cleveland . . . Until he went out with Happy Holmes, Eddie was coaching Hebron Academy . . . As Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stewart were walking up the ramp of the Garden last night, a ticket speculator gave the Bruins captain a remarkable sales talk pertaining to the purchase of a ticket for a "buck" . . . Apparently, the "specs" don't know their Bruins.

With Frank Jerwa, the former Cubs star, figuring in every goal, the St. Louis Eagles defeated the Detroit Red Wings 3 to 2 last night . . . Manager Frank Patrick ordered his Bruins to rest up today . . . They have another game with the Amerks tomorrow night in New York, where the Joe Simpson crew are tough to beat.

In Madison Square Garden the Americans bat the puck around at random, and, due to their keen knowledge of the board angles, they give even the speediest outfits in the N. H. L. a real battle . . . Don't be surprised if the Bruins boot tomorrow night's tilt, which will be the first they have blown in ten starts.

TOLAN Pro Sprint CHAMP

Melbourne, March 13 (AP)—Eddie Tolan, former University of Michigan track star and Olympic 100 and 200-meter champion, won the world's professional sprint championship here today by finishing first in the 220-yard dash, final event of the meeting. Tolan's time was 21½ seconds.

Three victories and one third place finish gave the Negro speedster a total of 16 points. Austin Robertson of Australia, who previously held the title, finished second to Tolan in the 220 today to become runner-up for the meeting.

CORNELL Enters Team

New York, March 13 (AP)—Cornell's indoor polo team, who have been competing under difficulties for the past few years as "unofficial" teams which had no home ring practice or games, make their debut this year as competitors in the indoor intercollegiate championships.

A new riding hall was opened at Ithaca this winter and polo became a recognized sport. The big red team has entered the intercollegiates along with Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania Military College and Army.

East Boston to Be Track Site

By JACK CONWAY

Peace appeared on the race track horizon in Massachusetts this afternoon, following a meeting among individuals interested at the office of Charles F. Adams, 101 Milk street.

The following statement was issued following the meeting:

"At a general conference of horse racing interests, attended by Bayard Tuckerman, Walter O'Hara, Allan Wilson, W. J. McDonald, R. E. Danielson and general counsel for the Eastern Racing Association, Inc., substantial progress was made and all interests were in complete accord.

With O'Hara going into conference with the other individuals for the first time, his arrival apparently had ironed out the situation. O'Hara had been reported as backing a Natick site, with the other group seeking the East Boston location. Following O'Hara's withdrawal from the group originally favoring East Boston.

"A definite announcement of complete plans may be expected early next week. There was every indication that all interests have but one common objective, namely, that of giving the people of the commonwealth a reasonable amount of horse racing of the highest standard."

PROTEST Censorship OF NEWS

THREATEN TO REMOVE WIRES

By International News Service

Bay Meadows, Cal., March 13—A rigid censorship of news wires at Bay Meadows race track drew vigorous protests today from national racing services which supply form charts.

The California racing board met last night with William P. Kyne, general manager at Bay Meadows.

The purpose of the meeting was to the effect that the censorship apparently is here to stay despite the protests of the racing associations and directors of the track.

Carleton Burke, chairman of the racing board, pointed out the action was necessary to prevent illegal pool room betting.

Although all newspaper wires and telephones came under the censorship rule, press copy was not censored. The racing board appointed G. H. Simmons, a former telegrapher, as censor.

The Nationwide News Service and Pe[illegible] refused to [illegible] the track unless the censorship was removed so far as it interfered with their national service in furnishing description of races.

BEST—Biography in 5th

Tropical Park, Fla., March 13—Biography, a clever Hialeah winner, need only to repeat his last effort in order to grace the winner's circle in the one mile and a sixteenth of the fifth race here tomorrow afternoon.

The Bradley color bearer shapes up as the safest wagering proposition on the card.

FIRST RACE

Air Line, Charmed Eyes, Last Time.

AIR LINE, on general form, figures to head a field of this sort. CHARMED EYES, a gun from the barrier, may hang on long enough to save the place from LAST TIME. The latter figures close up.

SECOND RACE

Dandy Jay, Beda, Shotgun.

[illegible] this stiff [illegible] was outclassed against better ones last time out. BEDA, a brisk morning worker, may come up a "good thing." SHOTGUN may be underrated.

THIRD RACE

Lemint, Sandy Beach, Black Bess

LEMONT, twice runner-up to Deliberator, is entitled to a three-star rating Contention, if any, will be furnished by SANDY BEACH. The latter placed in her last two outings. BLACK BESS for the remainder.

FOURTH RACE

Elbandido, True Charm, Masked Revue

ELBANDIDO has the necessary foot to outstep his opponents every foot of this journey. TRUE CHARM, another fast trek will likely force the pace. MASKED REVUE figures next best.

FIFTH RACE

Biography, Ridge Mor, Chastity, Beaver Dam.

BIOGRAPHY will have the improved RIDGE MOR to down. CHASTITY and BEAVER DAM are strong possibilities. They are fancied as named.

SIXTH RACE

Fervid, Sun Tea Time, Squeeze Out

FERVID, a sturdy router looms best in this wide-open affair. SUN TEA TIME the main danger, was never in fast fettle. SQUEEZE OUT was short of work last time.

SEVENTH RACE

Cousin George, Lofty Lady, Sun Cloister.

COUSIN GEORGE was barely nosed out by St. Kitts yesterday. A duplicate of that effort would likely result in brackets. LOFTY LADY is reported on razor edge by the clockers. SUN CLOISTER may set the early pace.

IMP IS NORMAL SAYS DOCTOR

"Boxers Childish"

By Pat Robinson
By International News Service

New York, March 13—"Fate," remarked Dr. Bill Walker, physician to the New York State Boxing Commission, "can make you a bum or a baron, a chump or a champ."

This was while lunching with Commissioner Bill Brown, General John Phelan, and the writer.

An hour later the doctor was being rushed to a hospital with a terrible gash in his head and a broken leg, suffered in stepping into the path of an auto which skimmed him against a truck.

Yes, doctor, fate plays queer tricks on us all.

The strange part of it all is that he had just finished giving the sports writers a most [illegible] story on head injuries.

Earlier in the day he had examined those two behemoths of beak busting Ray Impe, thrice and Primo Carnera and had put the medical okay on both for their fight Friday night.

"Carnera," said the little round doctor with the cherubic face and the baby pink complexion, "is a pituitary monstrosity. He's strictly a glandular case. That accounts for his abnormal hands, feet and jaw.

"The Imp, on the other hand, although bigger than Carnera, is just a normal, oversized man who is proportionately built all over."

Doc has examined countless thousands of fighters through the years and in that time has put the stethoscope on many a boy of adonis, but the prize of them all was Jack Dempsey, the day he weighed in to fight Louis Firpo, the wild bull of the Pampas.

"Dempsey was the perfect athlete that day," said Doc. "He was the finest physical specimen I ever examined."

BING, BING!

"I'm going to play the outfield, says the veteran Bing Miller, formerly of the Athletics, and wearing a Red Sox uniform for the first time.

Sandler Leaves for Olympics

Jimmy Sandler, the red-thatched high jumper of Northeastern University and former star of St. John's prep and Lowell high, will represent the United States at the Jewish Olympics, to be held in Palestine on April 21. He leaves for New York tonight to join the group of athletes selected by the Maccabi Association.

Sandler's selection is most popular, since he is the best jumper in Massachusetts at the present time, having cleared the greatest height of any Bay Stater when he leaped the bar at 6 feet 4⅞ inches at the Bates meet.

"TOPS," SAYS BILLY EVANS

By the Associated Press

Orlando, Fla.—Stanley Bordagaray and Bobby Reis are leading the rookie parade in the Brooklyn Dodgers training camp.

Bordagaray, a fleet ball-hawk, may not be able to displace as powerful a hitter as Danny Taylor in the outfield, but he'll be a handy fellow to have around. Reis, a good hitter, has shown good form and may be kept as a utility infielder.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—George Selkirk is being groomed by the New York Yankees to fill as much of Babe Ruth's big shoes as he can.

Not only is he the leading candidate for right field, where Ruth operated for so long, but also is tentatively picked for the Babe's No. 3 spot in the batting order.

New Orleans—General Manager Billy Evans of the Cleveland Indians, after a long look at his team, thinks the pitching department is "tops" and the outfield 50 per cent better than it was last season.

Evans said he was equally well pleased with the infield, but admitted he wasn't entirely satisfied with the catching prospects. He is counting on the recovery of Glenn Myatt and Frank Pytlak from last season's ailments to strengthen the catching.

Miami Beach, Fla.—Not the least interesting of baseball comebacks this spring is that which Larry Benton, 38-year-old right-hander, is attempting with the New York Giants.

Benton has pitched six innings of scoreless exhibition ball so far, allowing only four hits. He pitched the last three innings of yesterday's game with the Browns, the Giants winning 1—0.

Bradenton, Fla.—Having defeated the Phillies in their first spring game, the St. Louis Cardinals today take on the Athletics.

The great Dizzy Dean's pride was hurt in yesterday's game when the Phillies lambasted him for three runs in the third inning. The Cards, however, blasted across six in the first frame and added three others to win, 9 to 6.

Avalon Cal. Beating the White Sox Saturday and Sunday apparently appeals more to Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cards. Cubs than taking Pittsburgh Tuesday and Friday.

The Cub boss has decided to turn loose the "Big Four" of his pitching staff against the Sox. Lonnie Warneke and Larry French will divide Saturday's hurling, with Bill Lee and Tex Carleton to work Sunday.

Pasadena, Calif.—Manager Jimmy Dykes' worries about the Chicago White Sox second base situation have been dispelled by the lively actions of Munter (Jack) Hayes.

Hayes suffered a thumb fracture last July fourth, and after the season had one of those elbow operations. Dykes wondered if Hayes would regain form. In drills he has looked just as good as ever.

Connecticut May O. K. Betting

By Associated Press

Hartford, Ct., March 13—Legalized horse racing and betting in Connecticut became a strong probability today as a result of the endorsement of such legislation by the judiciary committee of the General Assembly.

The committee decided to submit a favorable report to the House on a bill creating a Connecticut racing commission of two members appointed by the governor to supervise racing and betting through pari-mutuel machines.

Advocates of such legislation defeated in previous legislative sessions, were quick to point out that the occasions have been rare when the General Assembly upsets a committee report.

The House is expected to act on the horse racing bill early next week.

The committee gave the racing bill an endorsement on the heels of a joint hearing yesterday during which a host of witnesses said the measure will increase the annual revenue of the state by approximately $1,000,000.

Opponents criticized horse racing and betting as a practice which would divert money from business channels and encourage gambling.

Dizzy Saving Stuff

Bradenton, Fla., March 13—"I'm saving my stuff for the games that count," was Dizzy Dean's explanation for a poor 1935 debut against the Phillies.

Dizzy was nicked for three runs in the third inning on two walks, a scratch single by Chiozza and a double by John Moore. The Cardinals won, however, 9-6.

IDENTITY CONTEST GROWS

Mr. Boston George vs. Zaharas

By Jack Conway

I WONDER what would happen if Ed Don George should consent to defend his world heavyweight championship against George Zaharas at the Garden on Friday night without a referee in the ring.

Mr. Boston

Zaharas, a rough type of grappler would dare to have no referee barred.

George would be a fool to consent to such a program. Without a referee Zaharas could use every foul and every illegal trick and might be able to cripple the champion.

Don, as a pro[moter] would be foolish [to] put himself, but he would have everything to lose and very little to gain by consenting to the Zaharas plan.

• • •

I have always felt most fights were not as crooked as they are supposed to be, but the Ed George-Joe Reddy match for the championship of Boston in a ring in Mechanics building looked as if both men were out to please the customers and walk out of the ring with their purses.

• • •

Zaharas is a big man and George and Reddy are about the same physical size. I have seen an excellent fight between these two men when they were out for action.

• • •

Paul Bowser, one of the best referees in the business, officiated between Eddie Dillon and Joe Garibaldi, but they were no fight.

Chief Little Wolf, top wrestling card in California, will [oppose] Rudy Dusek in the semi-final at the New York Garden card. "Tootsie" Mondt believes [Chief] Little Wolf will be the [toughest] he has ever had.

• • •

Rudy Dusek will be in Boston tonight to oppose Frank Sexton at an Alex MacLean show at the Arena. Rudy is one of the most satisfactory wrestlers in the country. Also one of the busiest.

Rudy is the family name and keeps brother Ernie Joe and Emil physicals in the wrestling. Duseks are standouts in the world of sports.

McCOY'S CLASS

AL McCOY continues to improve with each ring start.

"McCoy is a good puncher and has a great deal of boxing class," said Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion.

"The only time I saw in his style as he knocked out Tait Littman was a great deal of lost motion. At still makes a great many unnecessary motions before he lets a punch fly. This uses up energy.

"McCoy is certain to correct this fault with experience. He will then use this extra energy betting at his ring rivals."

• • •

McCoy's next test will be against Tony Shucco at the Garden on March 22. Shucco is a fast class boxer and McCoy will not find it easy to nail the North End youth with a right hand sock on the whiskers.

• • •

Johnny Buckley has heard about McCoy's success, and will start East with Lou Brouillard the latter part of next week. Buckley and Brouillard plan to make the hop East from Los Angeles by plane. The Coast is only 20 hours away from Boston on the regular passenger planes.

Dinny tells me he will have a first class team and that the fine spirit of his players will give them the edge in the close games.

The sale of Braves tickets for the opening game is booming . . . Try and get a grandstand ticket early. The acquisition of Babe Ruth makes it certain that the opening game between the Braves and Giants on April 16 will be a sellout . . . Ruth will net the Braves thousands of dollar during the series of exhibition games which will be played before the regular season opens . . . The Ruth deal was the high spot in baseball finance . . . The greatest card in baseball only cost the Tribe a few long distance telephone calls and a trip by Judge Fuchs to New York.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"His Life at Stake"

It Was a Hard Job for a Time to Tell This Reporter from a Maniac

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

I. You know, fellow adventurers, they say a reporter has a swell job. All he has to do is prowl around the streets all day going to three-alarm fires and asking cops when they're going to catch the bird who hooked Mrs. Paunce fote Van Swiller's $30,000 diamond neck lace. That, boys and girls, is what a lot of people think of the newspaper business, but if you put it that way to Ed Brown Edward M. Brown, of 211 Atlantic avenue Atlantic City, N. J.—the only answer you would get would be a rousing "Oh, yeah

FLOYD GIBBONS

Mrs. Van Swiller's ne[illegible]

It was on a warm spring night some where along in April that somebody sent in a call for an ambulance and Ed hopped aboard and rode along to find out what the trouble was. The address they were called to was a two-story house, and everybody in it was in a panic when they got there.

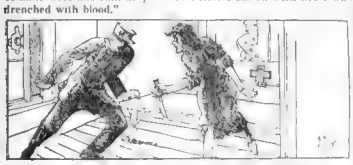
Ed and another lad grabbed a stretcher. Someone shouted "She's upstairs," and thinking it was probably an asphyxiation case Ed dashed upstairs, with the other lad close behind him. They entered a dark bedroom where weird, strangling [illegible] from a bed in a corner, and picking an inert form up from the bed they put it on the stretcher and started downstairs.

Ed went first at the [illegible] down the steps thought [illegible] him. Downstairs in the [illegible] BLOOD. The patient had cut [illegible] THROAT.

They put her in the ambulance as [illegible] her down, while the lad up front [illegible] pital. As he sat on the edge of the st[illegible] of the vehicle he felt someth[illegible] the ambulance passed under an arc [illegible] that brushing sensation. The injured w[illegible] her eyes, was clutching a knife—trying h[illegible]

With a yell Ed grabbed her arm. [illegible] had lost the woman seemed endowed w[illegible] She twisted free, struggled to her [illegible] cackle started for Ed with the knife.

"Words," says Ed, "can't describe that eerie picture—fighting with a woman in the cramped quarters of an ambulance—a mad woman armed with a knife—with that horrible gaping wound in her throat that poured blood and opened and closed monotonously with every breath she took. I forgot chivalry. With each lunge I would sidestep and swing a right to her face. Those blows of mine were like rain drops. Each time I closed with her I was drenched with blood."



Up ahead the driver saw Ed's predicament and came to his aid. Without stopping the ambulance he reached [illegible] his black jack and held it in the air. Ed saw it and bent [illegible] opponent back so that her head was close to the driver's [illegible] Gauging his distance through the mirror over the wind-shield he brought the jack down [illegible] on the woman's skull. She didn't even gasp—just went [illegible]

Ed got hold of the knife. The woman lay senseless on the ambulance floor. The driver pushed the throttle down to the floor again, and with the gong clanging, the motor roaring, they continued on their way to the hospital.

Meanwhile someone had [illegible] doctors and nurses and internes [illegible] with a cut throat. As the custom is in [illegible] lowing the usual procedure, [illegible] pensary to get a wheelchair.

"I heard a nurse scream. Strong hands grabbed me, and before I could protest I was on a stretcher, pinned down by efficient orderlies and en route to the emergency operating room."

It was the closest Ed ever came to getting an operation he didn't want. The orderlies wouldn't let him off that stretcher until one of the nurses recognized him and he had explained two or three times that he was not the lunatic they were expecting, but merely a reporter who looked like one. Finally, they got the point and let Ed go.

The woman? She died [illegible] his letter, she died one [illegible] times during the ride in the ambulance. As I [illegible] to you, boys and girls. Don't try to be reporters. Send your stories in to me and let me take the gaff.

$10.00 EVERY DAY and $100.00 EVERY MONTH is what Floyd Gibbons will pay American readers to prove that more thrilling and interesting TRUE adventures happen in YOUR life and in the lives of your friends than anything fiction writers can invent. And Floyd will prove it every day on this page. The famous war correspondent's own life is filled with adventure. He was wounded in "No Man's Land," torpedoed in mid-Atlantic and rode with Death in the Sahara, but he wants to write YOUR story now. Send it in to him today. There are no conditions. Everyone is eligible.

HOW TO WIN

And Membership in the Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club

Floyd Gibbons, headline hunter and world famous adventurer, invites YOU to send in YOUR true adventure story to his column. He will pay $10.00 every day for every story printed and an extra prize of $100.00 for the best adventure of the month. You don't have to worry about how well you can write—just send in the facts and Floyd will whip your story into shape for publication. Put the biggest thrill in YOUR life down on paper and mail it to FLOYD GIBBONS, care of the Boston Evening American, and Floyd will do the rest.

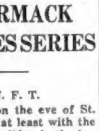
FAMOUS Tenor Back ON AIR

McCORMACK RESUMES SERIES

By N. F. T.

Practically on the eve of St. Patrick's Day, at least with the colorful Irish holiday in the immediate offing, John McCormack returns to take his week radio place (WBZ) again, scheduled for tonight at 9 o'clock.



Following a concert and vacation trip to the West coast, the celebrated Irish tenor moves into the "mike" spotlight again for a series that will occupy his place on a regular Wednesday night network half-hour airing on the stroke of 9:30 o'clock. All of which is arranged to hold forth through the month of April.

Seven Fred Allen amateur "N. F. T." acts that have received high rating in listeneres nets will be reassembled for a "Super-Amateur" program at the "Town Hall Tonight" broadcast (WEEI) over the 9 to 10 o'clock spread this evening.

The seven who were selected for a repeat performance, after votes from all over the country had been counted, are David Hughes, tenor (first prize winner of February 13); Barry and Keller, piano duo (first prize winner of January 16); the Three Sparklers, harmonica players (first prize winners of January 30); John Luis, imitator (second prize winner of January 30); Marilyn Kay, blues singer; Rudy Jonas, crooner, and Dot, Helen and Jean, vocal trio.

* * *

Mary Pickford will be heard on the air in a dramitization of one of the most popular silent pictures she ever made (WEEI) tonight at 8 o'clock, when she takes the leading role in "Tess of the Storm Country." With her dramatic company, the star of screen and radio will be heard broadcasting from studios in Hollywood.

A tour of the Museum of Natural History, with George Burns acting as Gracie Allen's guide, will occupy most of the Burns and Allen broadcast, also coming from the west coast (WEAC) this evening from 9:30 to 10.

Gracie, whose knowledge of the Mesozoic era and things dinosaur en is practically nil, will give the musuem "guides" an afternoon of unrivaled turbulence.

* * *

One of the most difficult arias ever written, the "Bell Song" from Delibes' opera, "Lakme," which taxes the fullest range of a coloratura soprano, will be featured by Lily Pons during her program (WNAC) with Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra and ensemble, a 9 o'clock feature on your dial and mine, tonight.

Radio Questions

Q—Would you please tell me what is so funny about "Big Bill" Childs dance the Minstrels programfi Everybody laughs so heartily. W. L. R. of Waltham.

A—Only that it is announced as a tap dance and in reality done with drum sticks—so that the onlookers know the radio audience is being fooled.

Q—Wonder if it would be possible to inform me of the worst error ever made on the radio? Also is it true that Bing Crosby wears a wig?

BUSTER, of Cambridge.

A—Rather a matter of opinion. Many wild ones have been made, including the humorous incident where one furriers program was credited to another and rival firm —right here in Boston and by our Governor. Remember that one? No, to your second question, Bing has his own hair.

Q—I notice you say in your column that Jack Benny will broadcast from Boston while appearing here in person next month. How can I get admission?

P. R. of Beverly.

A—Write to the National Broadcasting Company, Hotel Bradford, Boston, Mass.

Q—Is the girl Frances on "Today's Children" the same as Irene on "The Singing Lady" program? If not, why are these two persons?

—Marjorie of Brookline.

A—They are the same, her name is Irene Wicker.

The funeral of Dr. Horace D. Arnold, 72, former dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Medicine, who died Monday at his home, 84 Wooton street, Waltham, was to be held today at his late residence.

WILLIAM TOMLINSON

Funeral arrangements for William Tomlinson, 64, dog fancier and Empire Free Rental Bureau, under Boston Evening American auspices, who died yesterday at his home in New Bedford, were to be completed today.

Mills Ask Tax Be Dropped

At a meeting attended by representatives of a large majority of mills in the North, the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers adopted resolutions urging repeal of the processing tax.

Relative to the processing tax, the association said:

"We believe that the processing tax is unfair in that it taxes one group for the benefit of another, and that it should be eliminated.

"Furthermore, it is stifling the cotton textile industry as a whole in that, among other reasons, (1) it has helped put the cost of goods into the realm of diminishing returns; (2) it adds from 8 to 15 per cent to inventory values, which is an impossible burden for the mills to carry in their present weakened financial condition; (3) in stifling our industry it is increasing unemployment, and it is hurting the very ones whom it was designed to help, namely, the cotton growers, since less of their product is being used."

REFORM RESPITE BIG NEED NOW

AMERICANISM IN FASHION

By B. C. FORBES

This column recently reminded Washington, "There is a time for action, a time for inaction."

This sentiment is being echoed throughout the country.

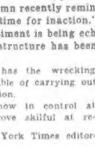
After a structure has been torn down, rebuilding naturally follows.

Not always has the wrecking crew been capable of carrying out the reconstruction.

Will those now in charge at Washington prove skilful at reconstruction?

Says a New York Times editorial:

"It is clearly high time that Congress and our legislatures relaxed from the high tension under which they were during the period of acute emergency. Their inquiry should now be, not what sudden and ill-considered bill they can pass, but what constructive and useful measures, a necessarily few in number, can be carefully put together to meet a real public need. That is far more important than to satisfy a febrile desire to be always in full view hastily devising, or at least proposing, laws that had much better remain as somebody's happy thoughts than to find a place in the statute books."



B. C. Forbes

That public sentiment is becoming impatient with constant "new" activities at Washington and is beginning to demand, instead of reorganization, results from those in power, is increasingly evident from newspaper comments, from correspondence and from conversations.

THERE'S NO SUBSTITUTE FOR JOBS.

Unless the administration can so cooperate with business and industry as to bring about better conditions, more employment, no amount of denunciation, no multiplicity of "reforms," will much longer satisfy.

Consider this from the Streator, Ill., Times Press:

"B. C. Forbes, economist and writer, says that 'Americanism is again getting to be the fashion.' This changing attitude on the part of the American people regarding their system of government and their institutions is observed by him and is evidenced throughout the country.

"This swing back to confidence in themselves and belief that the derangements of life which have come in the last twenty years can be successfully straightened out, belief that abuses which have crept in American life can be corrected in general, comes as a natural reaction to the recent ERA when it was popular to condemn everything which had contributed to the greatness of the nation and to praise everything of foreign coloring, Fascism, Communism and other isms . . .

"The pendulum of public thought swings to the extreme in one direction and then to the extreme in the other direction. At present the pendulum is sweeping toward Americanism. As the story of other centuries has been told, as the dictator and his method of governing have been analyzed, as the various philosophies of government have been discussed, the American is convinced that despite his troubles and woes, it is impossible to pick another spot on the whole globe where he would be as well situated as he is in these United States."

The high hopes raised six months ago that the administration would fulfill its proclaimed intentions to co-operate closely with men of affairs in restoring confidence, stability and employment have gone glimmering.

Meanwhile, the presidential election draws nearer and nearer—it is less than twenty months off.

What is likely to happen if more millions of unfortunates have to depend on charity, on public relief, and no satisfactory progress be made in reducing the number of millions long idle?

Why every responsible federal officeholder does not choose to concentrate on encouraging expansion of enterprise and employment, passes comprehension.

Surely, if depression and discontent should be rife when the presidential campaign rages, many voters would logically want to give some other party a chance to bring back better times.

Tearing down must be followed by rebuilding.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR JOBS.

ECCLES DISPELS

Doubts

ON CENTRAL

Bank

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Marriner S. Eccles bluntly telling the House banking and currency committee that there is no need of a Central Bank as the present bill provides ample control must have shocked those who said a Central Bank would not come.

When the banking bill 1935 first saw sent to Congress Hill we said here that it provided for everything Central Bank enthusiasts asked except name. This just about clinches the argument. The governor of the Federal Reserve is again on the stand today and we suggest careful reading of his remarks. Those who want a Central Bank are not dreaming. Rather are they actively working to further their plans. It is a development of first magnitude to the financial world.

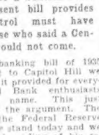
Remarks of Frank D. Comerford, chairman of the board of the New England Power Association, in regard to the drop in common stock earnings for 1934 are highly illuminating. Last year $1.27 per share is reported. This compares with $2.10 for 1933. Doing more business the company is earning less money. Mr. Comerford points out that the cost of doing the business increased so substantially that the company literally failed to participate in the general business revival since 1934. Reasons: An increase in taxes of over 13 per cent on top of an increase in the cost of carrying on the business.



Frank D. Comerford

Bits of market action we can do without: Sears touching 30 . . . Air Reduction getting down to 107 flat . . . Atchison slipping much under 35 . . . Consolidated Gas dropping half of the 16-17 area, where a good base appears to be forming . . . duPont making its 35-35 area where it really seems headed . . . International Harvester taking the severe tumbles that would be indicated if 35 flat is touched . . . Johns Manville failing to get a foothold in the 36-38 zone . . . Libbey Owens oozing out of a former support area, as it would if 22 is seen.

* * *

Principal question asked of us is there an upturn in the offing? Probably there is, but remember the minor trend is not only difficult to call at the time in a bond room but impossible on a rigid schedule. Our idea is to follow the intermediate trend and then spot the logical levels for reversal of turns in order to lighten accounts that would be in distress if another big move in spots is witnessed. One of these now seems to be in the making.

* * *

We would like to see: Central hold in here . . . Texas Corp. make a bottom between 19-17 . . . Pacific Gas hold in the logical 30-33 zone instead of sliding down to a lower spot for a rally base . . . Westinghouse keeping its record clean by refusing to ease through early year support . . . To do this 36 must not be made . . . Steel stay above that 29 marker . . . Between the dots and the don'ts listed we ask very little else . . . And if all wishes come true the market will really itself for an intermediate rally just slightly lower down.

Governments

Trading in U. S. governments was in very limited volume with prices showing but little variation from the previous finals.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1935

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Patriotic Legislators Will Support Oath-of-Allegiance Bill

OPPONENTS of the oath-of-allegiance bill have defeated themselves.

They should have kept quiet.

Their protests—delayed and widely scattered as may be—furnish the proof positive that this law is needed, and the louder the howling against it, the more convincing the proof of need.

In its present pending stage this bill, requiring a constitutional oath of allegiance by teachers and professors, may be likened to the pressure of a doctor's fingers exploring to locate a seat of pain.

Reaction of the patient reveals the location of the sore spot.

Where an "Ouch!" of protest is heard against this bill, THERE is a weak spot in the patriotic structure of our educational system.

THE reasons so far advanced in explanation of opposition to this bill remind us of a story:

A man whose appendix was chronically troublesome, but who feared the surgeon's knife, was at last taken to a doctor by a friend.

It fell to the friend to explain the symptoms while the doctor, turning to the reluctant patient, explored the region of trouble with his fingers, finally exerting pressure on the sensitive spot.

The patient let loose a yell of anguish and tears sprang to his eyes.

"Aha!" exclaimed the doctor. "That will have to come out."

"Honest, doctor," pleaded the scared patient. "It didn't hurt. I just hollered because it tickled."

So the doctor tried again and the result was the same as before: tears and a cry of pain.

"Well, anyway," whined the patient, "I don't want to lose it."

SO it is with the explanations of those objecting to this bill.

They would have the Legislature believe that there is no sore spot requiring attention—that they are wailing and crying just because "it tickles."

"Entering wedge of Hitler regimentation . . ."—BOSH!

"Insulting to teachers . . ."—PIFFLE!

"Prevents free speech . . ."—ROT!

"Lack of faith . . ."—NONSENSE and also FIDDLESTICKS!

This bill is a wedge to drive out treachery and is an insult to un-American educators.

As to the argument that it prevents free speech, it calls for allegiance to a Constitution guaranteeing free speech.

NOBODY who INTENDS allegiance to the United States will object to taking the oath of allegiance.

The real reason that there are objections to this bill is because there are objectors to the United States.

Real American teachers and professors are supporting it.

So is every patriotic and nearly every fraternal organization in the state.

Proof beyond doubt that this legislation was required was contained in disclosures of Communist activities in the schools.

The clinching proof—the proof positive—lies in the objections that have been raised.

Gentlemen patriots of the Legislature: Let's put this bill on the statute books at once!

Downey Good Choice

For Schools Post

FAVORABLE consideration should be given by the Boston School Committee to the proposal that Walter F. Downey be appointed assistant superintendent of schools.

The post to which he is recommended will be vacated April 1 by the retirement of William B. Snow.

Mr. Downey has been headmaster of English High School for 12 years. English High is a famous school of exacting requirements. Mr. Downey has served with distinction.

Many will commend Mr. Downey to the school committee but the most impressive and convincing move in his behalf is the resolution adopted by 15,000 graduates of the school where he has shown his leadership.

The English High School Alumni Association, oldest and largest organization of its kind in the country, wants Headmaster Downey to receive the appointment.

Certainly there could be no finer recommendation than that.

The Old Law

And New Needs

On Beacon Hill a committee has been considering a bill to repeal the "right" of sheriffs, mayors and selectmen to call out State troops in emergencies.

The supporters of repeal point out that the law was needed in old days because communication was then by horseback messengers.

Local authorities needed power to act immediately.

But nowadays the State House can be reached from all parts of Massachusetts in a few minutes by wire or radio.

The same original need as noted here once existed for costly county government.

And the same reason for repeal cited here is one of the many that can be advanced for county reforms.

For Song and Game Birds

Bay State Opens Covers

No longer is the Bay State to remain indifferent to the growing number of "vanishing Americans" as represented in popular song and game birds.

Widespread pleasure has been caused by recent announcement that Commissioner Samuel A. York of the Massachusetts Department of Conservation, and also head of our CCC camps, has plans to aid them.

In Lee 800 acres of Berkshire lands have been set aside as a protected cover for wild birds. Sandisfield, Brimfield and Plymouth will also have tracts under state protection.

Another attempt is to be made to revive the wild turkey flocks, similar to those from which the Pilgrim shot down their first Thanksgiving dinners.

If some means can be found to decrease the pests that now prey on the wild birds, the new Massachusetts movement will be assured of the success it deserves.

Hall to Launch Isms

The Capitol at Washington was originally intended to be the meeting-place of the Congress of the United States.

The caucus room has now become a meeting place to launch all the daffy isms that we are heir to.

Light, heat and elevator service, plus the use of the room, have lately been commandeered by Dr. Townsend to expound his doctrine of every man his own Morgenthau.

The Young Democratic Club tried to muscle in on a free pow-wow at the public's expense.

Finally, the employes of the Capitol, finding time hanging heavy on their hands between NRA decisions, requested the use of the caucus room for a bridge tournament.

We expect next to hear that Ambassador Troyanovsky will want the room to lecture the "American" branch of the Moscow State University on the proper attire to be worn at one of Joe Stalin's shooting levees.

And, meanwhile, the taxpayer carries the hod.

A Genius With the Needle

Yet He Doesn't Sew

John Taylor Arms, president of the Society of American Etchers, is famous for the delicacy of line of his etchings.

Here's his secret: He never uses an etching needle, but relies almost entirely on plain sewing needles, preferably Nos. 8 and 9.

The quality of ingenuity which makes a man think of that sort of thing is the essence of real talent, even of genius.

The Destructive Flood

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, March 13—Probably America's champ address changer is E. Lloyd Sheldon, former New York newspaperman and now a movie mogul in Hollywood. In his metropolitan days he used to sleep one night in a Bowery lodging, the next at the Waldorf or Holland House and another night a Mills hotel.

During his California residence, it has been nothing for him to live in ten different houses, apartments or hotels in a year. Sometimes a marble mansion in Santa Barbara, then a leased house in Pasadena or a palatial palace in Beverly and back perhaps to some obscure hotel.

A runner up for Sheldon is Don Clarke, the novelist. In the past five years he has had five different apartments in New York, three different houses on Long Island, two in Massachusetts and at the moment he has acquired a seashore home in Florida and visits realtors daily for suggestions.

The late Arthur Somers Roche leased a villa for the season on the French Riviera and remained less than two weeks. Tommy Millard in long stays anywhere often goes to a different hotel every week. Michael Arlen has occupied 20 different flats in London and Paris and has now gone to an Austrian Schloss.

O. O. McIntyre

Among the rarest of sisterly devotions is that between Mrs. Rex Beach and Mrs. Fred Stone. They exchange daily letters when they are too far from each other to use the telephone. Always they attend the theater together and rarely do they go separately to social functions.

Likewise they both write daily letters to their mother who is in Florida.

One of New York's best dressed artists is Rae Van Beuren, whose classic profile is second only to that of James Montgomery Flagg. Van Beuren goes in for browns and beiges, with grass-green ties, so becoming to redheads.

McClelland Barclay is another of the fashion plate artists who suggests some of the drawing room men in his magazine illustrations. Russell Paterson is also the dudiest of dudes. Successful artists are no longer seedy.

Elsie De Wolfe, reputedly, gives the most satisfactory as well as effortless dinners of any New York hostess. She does not resort to stunting, but clings to the older formalities.

Her dinners start promptly and have a way of ending around 11 o'clock. Ward McAllister believed dinner parties turned sour after 11. The supreme trick of entertaining is jockeying people home before the deadline.

New York's windiest spot has shifted again. Once it was the old Flatiron corner at 23d street and then by some freak of architecture the corner of Broadway at 57th street. Now Radio City carries off the honors.

There is a certain strip of the plaza there where the wind takes on hurricane proportions. It has claimed two toupees and one set of uppers. And sent Kate Smith skimming along on tip toe.

The star of the flying trapeze, Alfredo Cadona, cracked up in a fall to the net, has become equestrian director of the Hagenbeck-Wallace show.

But the famous act in which his wife and brother still perform will be with that circus, billed as always, "The Flying Cadonas." Clyde Beatty, the lion tamer, has also left the big circuses to join a small one that will bear his name.

The girl with the long blonde curls who rides side-saddle so daringly, Dorothy Herbert, will do the Beatty act. Among her versatilities in an elephant skit which she handled two seasons.

Hail, Pretty Cow!

By Hendrik Van Loon

Is there anything more anonymous in the world than milk?

When you eat peas or salad, you can either know where they were raised in your grandfather's garden patch, or you can imagine just the sort of soil that grew them.

Even the humble Brussels sprout (don't ask for them in Brussels, for they don't know what you are talking about) is a definite thing in your life.

You have seen it cling to the mother stalk. You know that it says "aunt" to a full grown cabbage. It is no more anonymous than a string or a chuck or a lump of a chip (or whatever you call it) of broccoli.

Steaks and chops, too, have a sort of personality of their own, and when you order rib of beef you can everywhere make the gentleman who waits on you understand by pointing to your own ribs and saying "Moo!"

CLOSE TO ZERO

But milk has about as much personality as a postage stamp. And the personality of the average postage stamp, with all due respect to that great philatelist, the Hon. James Farley, closely approaches the absolute zero.

* * *

And yet just now, I feel like Dickens' hero in "Little Dorrit." "Cows are my passion," and with Ann Taylor I can sing, "Thank you, pretty cow, that made Pleasant milk to soak my bread."

The rhyme, I grieve to say, is pretty awful and dunking is no longer good form, but where would I be without the faithful Dutch rusk and the pretty cow? I would just exactly be nowhere at all.

That would probably come as a relief to many editors, but I have to think of my public, too.

And it is to my faithful readers that I would like to say, "Be kind to your cow (unless the Bank has got it). She may not be terribly bright but she saved my life, even as a goose saved the capitol of Rome."

* * *

And as a matter of fact, every body could be happy if it were not for diets. But when it becomes a matter of "to diet or to die," the thing no longer ceases to be a joke. Then it becomes a serious matter. Indeed, it might become a question of life or death if it were not for the patient cow.

I have no interests, either directly or indirectly, in any sort of dairying establishment.

But if some stranger were to ask me what I considered the greatest achievement of our beloved Republic, I would not tell him about the Constitution, the charm and beauty of our women, the valor of our men, our Democracy, or even the NRA (our local Socialism with the beau left out).

"BLESS OUR COWS"

No, I would speak just four words and all those who, like me, have spent a year in the exile of the sick-room would loudly shout Amen when I whispered, "Lord, bless our cows."

* * *

Maybe our country is all wrong. Maybe capitalism is doomed. Maybe individualism expired defending the last vestiges of the last frontier. Maybe we should have done everything differently from the way in which we have done it.

In one respect, however, we have surpassed the achievements of all other nations. We have built no pyramids, and the Taj Mahal is not of our making. But what are those trifles compared to a good glass of milk, a cold glass of milk, a safe glass of milk?

The patient cow is our anonymous benefactor.

I, who, ill, was the recipient of her bounty for four entire months, bow my head in reverent gratitude.

May we meet in celestial fields, Sister Cow, and I shall pluck you a daisy.

Vanity Case Arsenal

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

"When the whistle blows you powder your nose."

Such might be the work song of women in industry, but the trouble is there's too much powdering between times. Dr. William H. Allen, secretary of the New York Civil Service Commission, makes an issue of it.

Edwin C. Hill

No time out for repairs is his word to the 50 girls in his office, and furthermore, says Dr. Allen, too much rouge, too much fussing and fixing, is going to be a barrier to a girl's advancement from now on.

Not by polishing fingernails, but "by shining up the handle of the big front door" does one become the ruler of the Queen's Navee. That's Dr. Allen's Gilbertian idea.

Old-fashioned people will readily agree with Dr. Allen. But in these days nothing may be taken on its face value — since we're speaking of cosmetics.

NOTES ADVANTAGES

Note this from the personnel director of one of the biggest American life insurance companies employing thousands of girls:

"We encourage the use of cosmetics among our girls within sensible limitations. From certain psychological studies which I have examined, I am convinced that heightened effectiveness, assurance and general competence are gained by even that illusory and fictitious beauty which may be gained by skillful makeup. "If a girl feels that she is attractive and personable, fear, awkwardness and self-consciousness are lessened, and she is apt to be a better worker with greater chances of success.

"I have seen this work out in cases where the makeup was overdone and perhaps a bit fantastic. The girl felt so completely armed and accoutered that she could wade through anything.

"We, of course, recognize the importance of tastes and decent restraint in these matters. One of the women members of our personnel staff, skilled and tactful, takes a girl in hand when her personal adornment becomes a bit too blatant and noticeable, and gives her a few hints about overdoing it. Most girls, we find, are intelligent about such things and all they need is a little sensible guidance."

THE SALLIES KNOW

The personnel director chose an apt phrase in "armed and accoutred." In today's fierce competition for jobs, the vanity case is an indispensable arsenal.

The Salvation Army knows this. For at the New York home and employment agency for white collar girls, helping the girls get silk stockings and cosmetics is one of the main activities of the office staff.

If necessary, they are taught proper makeup; how to get the best effects out of a perhaps meagre wardrobe; how to attain an attractive yet seemly appearance, without extremes of adornment.

This office also reports greater courage and assurance in the girls who have no misgivings about their looks.

Young men, as well as young women, are also keyed up in appearance in this era of sharpened competition in job getting and job holding.

Listen, World!

FIND A SALT LICK

If you know cow country, you've seen the cattle coming down to the salt lick.

Elsie Robinson

Over the hills they come, sagging along in single file, moving slowly beneath that vast, sun-bleached sky, over the sparse, scorched grass, but never for a second forgetting the thing they're after.

THEY'RE AFTER SALT.

That grass, for all its scorched dryness, is succulent. Those hills, in spite of their grim immensity, afford friendly bedding.

And the winds are kind and the trickle of water in the creek is enough for the most exacting cow.

But however soft the bed or green the grass or sweet the water, cows need salt.

MEN LIKE THAT

So somewhere in the hills their owner dumps a great salt chunk and when need drives the herd they come sagging over the mesas and the plains to lay their tongues against its saving bitterness.

Men are like that, too. The bodies of men need salt.

Men have given hope and honor to get salt for their bodies. Men have traded jewels and fought wars because of that tingling rankness in their flesh.

THE SALT LICKS

They might have had other foods in abundance. Sweet, soft food, juicy meat, spicy savories, but without salt all that food lost its savor.

Men's spirits need salt, too.

A rough chunk of experience to which they must return from time to time.

Something primitive, compelling, that would cut through the taste of soft, fat, spicy living.

A SALT LICK—

Humiliation is a salt lick—

Competition and criticism are salt licks—

So do not try to eliminate these things from your life. Do not try to avoid them. Face them, rather, and be glad for them. Go out and seek them if they do not fall naturally in your lot.

If you have not tasted sorrow, go out and help bear the sorrow of others.

If you have no hardship, accumulate some.

If you have never been humiliated, take a good look at yourself and get that way.

If you have no competition or criticism, court them.

LIFE WITHOUT SALT LOSES ITS SAVOR.

BEWARE OF A LIFE THAT HASN'T A SALT LICK CACHED SOMEWHERE IN ITS HILLS. THAT LIFE IS DOOMED. IT WILL DIE OF ITS OWN SOFTNESS AND SWEETNESS.

Stars and Stripes

There's nothing cruel about dog racing in Massachusetts—because there ISN'T any dog racing.

Even the $40,000,000 won't suffice to put the old artists' colony of summer houseboats (1900 model) back in the tidal Merrimack.

To be compelled to make out an income tax return even when there's nothing to pay is just insult added to injury.

Our Washington delegation should have no trouble in making leaders "New England conscious." But it can't provide 'em with a New England conscience.

Hardware dealers, in national convention at the Statler, heard optimistic forecasts on outlook for the rest of 1935. Believers are on the increase.
